Ice Gorge Floods Town; Residents Abandon Homes

ST. LOUIS, ILL. March 23.—Flood by an ice gorge, five miles long formed at Brassfield's Island south of here, spring flood waters of the Missouri river today threatened to sweep through parts of this city until the jam was broken. Already the backed up water, which continued to rise, while efforts were made to break up the gorge by dynamiting, had caused one death. Several other persons were reported drowned and hundreds of heads of livestock, implements and dwellings were carried away. The property damage was estimated at $100,000.

As men attempted to break the water barrier, warnings were sent out to all residents along the river south of the gorge to abandon their homes. Many had disappeared. Should the gorge give away suddenly, these directing the dynamiting said, the tremendous head of water would destroy property within a wide range along the lowlands below Brassfield's Island.

Two ineffectual attempts were made to dynamite the ice jam by dropping bombs from an airplane. Hopes were held out for a period of mild weather which meteorologists said would cause an early loosening of the jam.

Fund To Save Ship

LONDON, March 23.—The fund to save Nelson's famous flagship, the "Victory," has been swelled by a gift of 50,000 pounds from a "well wisher of the navy."

For some time the old wooden man of war has been rotting in her dry dock at Portsmouth but the work of restoring her will soon begin so that she may ever be a symbol of naval power in Britain. It is expected that the ship will be kept in a dry-dock dedicated to her use alone, although the suggestion has been made that she be placed at the base of the Nelson column in Trafalgar Square.

Nelson's "Victory," the fifth ship of that name, in the British navy, was laid down in 1759. She saw 34 years of war and became the last survivor of those wooden vessels which won the empire.

Conspiracy Charges To Be Investigated

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Charges that there is a conspiracy in the sugar trade to raise prices were said at the department of justice today to be of sufficient gravity to warrant a preliminary inquiry by the federal government's legal office. A conference was arranged between Acting Attorney General Seymour and Secretary Hoover with a view to joint action.

A representative of the department of justice also was directed to obtain from Basil Manly, director of the Peoples Legislative service, who wrote to President Harding in connection with the sugar situation, information he has to support conspiracy charges. If the information warrants a special investigation, department of justice officials said the commerce department also will participate. Secretary Hoover is charged by Mr. Manly with being largely responsible for the recent bulge in the sugar market because of a department statement which was interpreted as forecasting a shortage.

Mr. Manly issued another statement today expressing delight that the department of justice had decided to take action "to stop the present outrageous gambling in sugar."

Injunctions, he said, could be obtained by district attorneys in 48 hours.

Bribery Used To Block Probes Of House Of David, Charged

President Harding's Sister Goes On Slumming Tour

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Mar. 23.—(By The Associated Press)—Lectures on the life of the House of David, which a prosecuting attorney in Berrien county to avert an investigation of alleged immoral conditions within the domain of the cult and that an appeal was once made to the Governor of Michigan to prevent an inquiry by federal agencies, marked the testimony of Mrs. Esther Hunsell in the suit for a financial accounting brought by her parents-in-law, who charged they were made the victims of fraud by the colony. Mrs. Hunsell brought her testimony to a climax with a passionate plea for action against the House of David, and a challenge to attorneys of the cult to bring into court girls she declared had been mistreated by its leader, Benjamin David Purnell.

Girls of tender age, now in the colony, she declared, would bear out the sensational charges of immorality practiced under the guise of religious ceremonies.

Intercession of Woodbridge N. Ferris, now United States Senator-elect, and then Governor of Michigan was sought by the cult in 1914, the witness declared, when a federal inquiry threatened.

and the Sawdust Inn in a Kenmar street basement were the last places visited. The cabaret at the latter place was just closing when one of the agents whispered to the manager that the president's sister was present. A special program was hastily arranged.

Miss Harding enthusiastically applauded the singing of "Rose of Pickawillany."

Four city detectives joined the party at the Sawdust Inn as an additional guard. A contemplated visit to police headquarters was given up owing to the lateness of the hour.

Attempts Made To Cut Hotel Bills Of Ohio Solons, Charged

COLUMBUS, O. March 23.—(By the Associated Press)—William W. Byers, Cleveland hotel man, and Ben Sawyer, said to be his "personal attorney," today will be given opportunity to answer statements made at yesterday's hearing before the senate committee investigating the hotel liabilities bill of Senator L. L. Marshall, that they attempted to have the Ohio Hotel Association pay the hotel expense of Senator J. J. Rowe, of Cleveland, while attending the legislative session and that they sought hotel reductions for other legislators.

Committee members were not certain when further hearings would be held after today.

COLUMBUS, O. Mar. 23.—(By the Associated Press)—The alleged attempt to have been made by W. W. Byers, of Cleveland, and Ben Sawyer, described as his "personal attorney," to have the Ohio Hotel Association see that hotel bills of members of the legislature were paid or reduced were detailed by W. G. Nickles, of New Philadelphia, President of the association, and Robert O'Brien, executive director at yesterday's session of the senate committee holding an investigation on the hotel liability bill of Senator L. L. Marshall, of Cleveland.

Other alleged activities of Byers and Sawyer in connection with hotel legislation were described in the testimony, and Mr. Nickles said that he had requested and received Mr. Byers' resignation as a member of the association.

Both these men who have carried the Democratic standard in National campaigns have learned, however, that in the game of politics it is not discreet to discuss personalities. Whatever they might say might be misconstrued. Yet both have well defined ideas on the men who ought not in their judgment to be nominated.

Combining the two lists which each man gave the writer, the catalogue of candidates for the Democratic nomination would seem to include the following:

Samuel Ralston, Governor of Indiana.

John W. Davis of West Virginia, former ambassador to Great Britain and former solicitor general under the Wilson administration.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury and Director General of Railroads.

Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama.

Governor Al Smith of New York.

Governor A. V. Donahay of Ohio.

Governor Jonathan M. Davis of Kansas.

Representative Ayres of Kansas.

Henry Ford, Detroit automobile king.

Former President Woodrow Wilson.

When William Jennings Bryan and former Governor Cox are added to the list for they have many supporters throughout the rank and file of the Democratic party—the roster would appear to be complete. Out of this group, therefore, will the next nominee be picked. That, at least, is the judgment of one of the two men interviewed here though the other seems to think that the next Congress may develop a leader for Democracy.

There are political advantages and disadvantages which could be recorded opposite all the names mentioned, and whether the defects in each case are really controlling is something which will be determined as the pre-convention campaign develops. But this much is certain—the active workers who already are traveling around the country corraling delegations are not to be overlooked.

FRIDAY

Devotion to Christ

"She hath done what she could."

Read Mark 14:1-11.

"The ideal home-maker is the ideal philanthropist. She dresses her family with scarlet, and she reaches forth both hands to the great world which needs her."

MEDITATION: See how Jesus evaluates sentiment! The devotion of Mary that broke the alabaster box is one with woman's God-given impulses which begot neither love and all the family of altruistic passions which elevate the race. Well may we reverence it!

HYMN:

In simple trust like theirs who heard, Beside the Syrian sea, The gracious calling of the Lord, Let us, like them, without a word, Rise up and follow thee.

PRAYER: O Heavenly Father, shed forth thy blessed Spirit richly on all the members of this household. Make each of us an instrument in thy hands for good. Purify our hearts, strengthen our minds and bodies, fill us with mutual love. Let no pride, no self-conceit, no rivalry, no dispute, ever spring up among us. Make us earnest and true, wise and prudent, giving no just cause for offense; and may thy holy peace rest upon us this day, sweetening our trials, cheering us in our work, and keeping us faithful to the end through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Our Anniversary

Today is an event in the history of The Times, for it marks the Twenty-Ninth anniversary of the paper, the first issue appearing March 23, 1894. It is a rather long time and many changes have taken place in the newspaper world in that period, and Portsmouth has grown from a small town of 15,000 to a real coming, prosperous city of more than 40,000.

As one of the men who were associated with the company that conceived The Times in 1894, having been city editor in charge of the first issue, and having been with the paper continuously ever since, I feel especially grateful to the many friends who have stood by us and believed in us during all these years. It is the earnest hope of myself and associates that The Times will continue to develop and grow as a newspaper, without strings and without fear of favor, and that we will be on the ground with a metropolitan paper, standing for the city and its interests, as it continues to expand.

Republican Political Leaders Back Harding

(Copyright, 1923 By United Press) WASHINGTON, March 23.—(By United Press)—Republican political leaders throughout the country are very unanimous for re-nomination of President Harding a poll of the Republican National Committee by the United Press shows today. Every reply received in response to request for comment on Mr. Harding's candidacy as announced by Attorney General Daugherty brought a prediction that the president will be re-nominated with little opposition. Likewise the committee made optimistic prophecy as to the chances for re-election. Many stated that delegations from their state would pledge to Mr. Harding and that people of their state strongly favored his candidacy. The president has the strong support of committeemen from thickly populated districts with the big block of votes. Among these are: Secretary of War Weeks, of Massachusetts; Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania; Charles B. Hilles, of New York, and R. K. Hynicka, of Ohio. Some of the committeemen could not be reached due to absence from the country. No reply was received from Senator LaFollette, state of Wisconsin.

JUNGLE HUNTER DIVORCED BY WIFE

CHICAGO, Mar. 22—Carl Akeley, mighty jungle hunter, naturalist and explorer, today was divorced by his wife Mrs. Della G. Akeley, an intrepid huntress who characterized him as a cave man. She charged he had beaten her and once attempted to take her life. The divorce was granted on her amended cross bill, charging cruelty. Four times Mrs. Akeley accompanied her husband into the old world jungles, braving death and she it was who was credited with shooting the largest elephant ever taken in Africa.

In May Akeley filed a divorce bill charging his wife with desertion. In January of this year she filed a cross bill also charging desertion. Later an amended bill, substituting charges of cruelty was filed in her behalf. She declared her husband choked her in December 1917 and a week later tied her to a bed and turned on the gas.

Mr. Akeley is well known in Portsmouth and will be remembered as having lectured here, giving one of his jungle lectures in the high school auditorium in January as one of the number on the high school lecture course.

Included in the headline attractions are the Victor Italian Guards' band; the play, "Turn to the Right" with a cast of nine people; the National Male Quartet, featuring Charles Coc comedian; Geoffrey O'Hara, celebrated song writer who produced such numbers as "There is no Death," "K-K-K-Katy" and "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride"; the Grosjean Marimba xylophone company, along with numerous other musical companies, lecturers and entertainers.

Many Blast Furnaces Will Resume Operations

CLEVELAND, OHIO, March 22—Iron Trade Review today said: Still higher production of iron and steel is promised by the plans for starting additional primary capacity now taking shape. At least 15 additional blast furnaces are scheduled to go in within 30 days if fuel and labor are obtainable. Wage advances continue under discussion in the industry and a 40c hourly rate for common labor is mentioned, representing an increase of approximately 11 per cent.

New business still is developing high spots, but it is more apparent that deferred delivery on steel is causing an increasing number of undertakings to be set aside for the time being. The Texas Co., has postponed indefinitely a 400 mile pipeline, requiring 50,000 tons. Some other pipe line projects have been postponed or abandoned.

These evidences of some restraint on new tonnage are welcome rather than distributing to many producers because their obligations are so large they have become unwieldy. Chicago mills for the third consecutive week have broken the record for total tonnage received in such a period this year. The steel bar demand at Pittsburgh is described as the most insistent in over 20 years.

Iron Trade Review composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products is up to a new high basis this week with a figure of $45.32, the highest in two years. Last week the average was $44.35.

Bookings by the sheet mills in February as officially given represent 95 per cent of capacity and were approximately 7 per cent above production.

Greater steadiness of steel prices reflects the conservative attitude of leading producers against continuation of rapid advance. The largest maker, however, now is quoting a minimum of 2.35c, Pittsburgh, for plates and shapes, an advance of $2.

New contracts for oil tanks this week total 30,000 tons. New York took bids this week on 15,000 tons of aqueduct work. Bids will be taken soon on the Hotely pipe line project on the Pacific Coast requiring 20,000 tons. At Chicago additional car orders call for 46,000 tons with 15,000 tons represented by new inquiry.

Pig iron prices have continued to

City Would Stop "Gasoline Hucksters"

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., March 23.—City officials are puzzled over whether or not they can stop the cry of "Any gas today?" on the streets of Huntington by an innovation—the gasoline huckster.

Complaints that tank trucks were peddling the volatile fluid in retail lots along the streets were received several days ago.

The "gasoline huckster" is said to be gaining in popularity with chance motorists, since he undersells established filling stations through being able to retail at "tank car" prices, ignoring the middleman.

Mayor Chapman and Commissioner Newman have declared against the plan, however, asserting that there is a constant danger from fire and explosion through the promiscuous filling of gasoline tanks along thoroughfares.

Village Folks Enjoy Visit Of President; He Rides In Ford

DAYTONA, FLA., March 23.—Titusville, a wee speck of a town to the south, was both thrilled and amused to-day by the sight of Warren G. Harding, of Washington, tourist in Florida, for a time, riding through the streets of the village in a shiny new Ford. The President, with Dick Jervis, of the Secret Service detail, was on a "personally conducted" sightseeing tour.

When the Houseboat Pioneer docked at Titusville to take on gasoline and water, the President left for a walk, which developed into a tour of the little town.

It was warm and eventually the President decided he could see the sights more pleasantly in an automobile. So the nearest car that appeared like it might be hired was hailed. It happened to be a bright new Ford driven by a young man wearing khaki trousers and a flannel shirt and no hat. Mr. Harding climbed in the back seat with Jervis and surveyed the realm, returning to dock just as the Pioneer was ready to lift anchor.

Helmick believes the animal laid down for a nap under a blow of a threshing machine and was covered by the straw.

Samuel Ralston is regarded as a good candidate in the sense that he comes from Indiana and is popular there but he is relatively unknown to the party as a whole and his supporters will have to do some strenuous advertising about him before his merits begin to make an impression.

John W. Davis is a man of acknowledged ability. His record as chairman of the Judiciary committee of the House, the fact that he stands for international cooperation, and was a Wilson appointee is expected to win him progressive support but his opponents are saying he is a lawyer for the J. P. Morgan interests and that the Democrats would never nominate a Morgan lawyer. There was a time when such a defect would cause a good bit of stir but some of the Wilson men in the Democratic party who remember that their chief appointed Wall street men like Bernard M. Baruch and Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan and company to important mission in his administration will not eliminate John W. Davis so readily on that account.

Some of the Democratic scouts are saying that Wall street is "working Davis in the North and Underwood in the South," and that at the opportune moment the Southern votes in the Democratic convention would be thrown to a Northern candidate. Mr. Underwood is a conservative and has many friends in the North, but whether the Democrats would nominate a man by choosing a Northerner is a question much more likely to be answered in favor of the Northerner not because Mr. Underwood wouldn't make an excellent President but because party habits are not likely to be changed in 1924.

Governor Al Smith is popular but while some solicitors for delegates might argue that a Catholic could not be elected, most of the opposition to Smith is being drummed up by the "drys" in the Democratic party who insist that the candidate should be a "dry" in order to offset the "dry" position which Mr. Harding will take and to remove the question from the Presidential contest and keep it in the Congressional and State jurisdiction where along the first steps toward modification of existing law would be initiated.

Governors Davis of Kansas and Donahay of Ohio are mentioned because they have carried important states but they are even less known than Governor Ralston of Indiana.

Representative Ayres of Kansas is another man from the West who has made a good record and has a following.

Henry Ford's chances of securing the Democratic nomination are about as good as they were four years ago. Nobody paid any attention at that time to the Ford boom, least of all Mr. Ford himself but if, as reported he permits his friends really to start a boom for him he may participate rather extensively in the next Democratic convention.

Former President Wilson is looked upon as a possible candidate by those who think a man who has once been a candidate for President of the United States can never suppress a desire to run for the same office again. This line of reasoning would put both Mr. Cox and Mr. Bryan into the race though neither one gives any indication of desiring the nomination. Mr. Bryan feels as young as he did in 1896 and could make an old fashioned campaign this year if he had the chance. Mr. Cox has a great many friends who believe he was unfortunate enough to be named in a year when nobody could have won because of the natural reaction from the war. They think he should have another chance and that he could surely carry Ohio this time.

So that's the lineup at present and the trend of the gossip about all the candidates with many an argument still unmade and many a good quality yet unrevealed because the publicity campaigns for the aspirants have not yet begun.

Attempts

the legislative committee of the hotel association after he had refused flatly to follow his recommendations.

"Caucus Held On Hotels"

Mr. Nickels said that he had been requested to seek concessions for legislators in the way of hotel rates, after Byers and Sawyer had told him in Cleveland that "a caucus had been held against the hotel industry," that the "legislature was opposed to everything the hotels were for," and that numerous members of both houses had complained that they were being overcharged by Columbus hotels. Mr. Nickels said an investigation had proved that the bills of Senator J. J. Rowe, whose name had been brought into the investigation yesterday, and who had made complaint, were not overcharged and that no instance of such practice had been found.

Mr. Nickels said that Sawyer and Byers both had come to him on more than one occasion to seek payment of Rowe's hotel expenses, representing that he was in bad financial condition. During a conference in New Philadelphia with Byers, Nickels said, Byers had urged him to pay the Senator's expenses and said he "thought we ought to permit Sawyer to put in a bill for professional services and pay the hotel bill." Mr. Nickels refused, he said, and Byers replied: "Why I loaned Joe Rowe $50 Saturday to finance him for the week."

day to finance him for the week."

Donahay's Name Mentioned.

Governor Donahay's name was brought into the proceedings today by Nickels when he said that he had met the chief executive in New Philadelphia and when he discovered he had missed a car to Denison where he was to catch a train for Columbus, drove him to Denison in his automobile. He asked the Governor if he would see Senator Marshall, author of the bill upon which no action had been taken, and inquire of him about its status. Nickels said Mr. Donahay later had told him while he was in Columbus, that he had spoken to Mr. Marshall who also is chairman of the cities committee. A question as to what Mr. Nickels thought had caused the bill to be reported out of the cities committee, elicited the statement from Nickels that he believed the Governor's conference with Senator Marshall was responsible.

Mr. O'Brien's testimony in most respects was similar to that of Mr. Nickels, both having told of first intending to have other senators introduce the bill which would limit liability of hotels for guests property, but finally having Mr. Rowe take the bill and turn it over to Marshall.

Produce Note For $300.

Mr. O'Brien, however, told of a luncheon at a Columbus hotel, attended by himself, Sawyer and Byers, during which Senator Rowe was described by Sawyer as having powerful influence in the legislature, and recommended as the member who should introduce bills, and during which, according to O'Brien, Sawyer requested Byers to produce a note. Byers took a note from his pocket, O'Brien testified, and he found that it was for $300 and had been made by Senator Rowe to Sawyer and had been endorsed over to Byers.

Sawyer, O'Brien said, declared that he had known Rowe for a long time and that he was not well off financially because of business reverses and "heavy campaign expenses." When questioned, O'Brien said he did not know why Sawyer showed the note to him.

Lawyer Is Witness.

Russell Knepper, Columbus attorney and counsel for the hotel association, was the only other witness heard today. Byers and Sawyer both were in Columbus, having been called here by the committee, but they will appear tomorrow, when another hearing will be held. Byers and Sawyer are the only additional witnesses who have been subpoenaed, it was said.

In his testimony, Knepper told of objections, said to have been raised on the liability bill by Senator Rowe because of an amendment. On Mar. 14, Knepper said he had been told that Rowe's objection had been removed and that night the bill was reported out by the cities committee. Byers told him, Knepper said, that he had given Sawyer $50 to be loaned to Rowe for his expenses.

Members Protest Hotel Rates.

The greater portion of Knepper's testimony was confined to corroboration of statements made by Byers and Sawyer.

A list of legislators said to have complained against hotel rates in Columbus, was read into the testimony

White-of-Egg in Calumet a Vital Element Most Baking Powders Lack

Don't use a leavener that does not contain white-of-egg. When you do you take chances—you run the risk of spoiling your bakings.

Nothing but absolutely fresh stock is permitted to remain on the dealers' shelves. It must always be up to the high Calumet standard.

Remember the white-of-egg in Calumet protects the success of your bakings. It is the economical positive bake-day aid and its sale is 2½ times as much as that of any other brand. A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

Sunday morning at nine o'clock is the time.

Bigelow church auditorium is the place.

Evangelist George Wood Anderson, Walter Jenkins, the western songbird, and Bentley D. Ackley, the wizard of the piano, will be the feature headliners, of what is expected to be one of the big days in Bigelow history. Rev. Mr. Anderson will have charge of the service and all of the classes of the Bigelow Sunday School, with the exception of those in the primary department, will rather in the main auditorium and enjoy and profit by the teachings of the evangelist.

Mr. Jenkins will sing several of his finest selections, and will be accompanied by Mr. Ackley, an announcement which in itself should guarantee that every seat available will be filled.

All of the officers and teachers of Bigelow are making a special effort to see that each class has a good representation present, and visitors will be given a cordial welcome. Arrangements have been made to provide extra seats, if necessary, and it is hoped to accommodate all who come. To be on the safe side, get there early.

Everyone in the city who does not attend Sunday school elsewhere is given a special invitation to come and hear the evangelist and his party.

Ford Buys 125,000 Acres Of Rich Kentucky Coal Land

LOUISVILLE, KY., March 23.—Coal men operating in Eastern Kentucky were waiting today for official confirmation of reports that Henry Ford had purchased the holdings in Kentucky of the F. S. Peabody Syndicate, of Chicago.

Ford company officials were quoted in dispatches from Detroit yesterday as having said company representatives who have been in Kentucky in connection with the proposed purchase were due to arrive in the Michigan city today and that after their arrival a statement might be made.

Attorneys in Frankfort who have acted for the Peabody interests in connection with their Kentucky holdings, last night confirmed reports that the deal had been closed, but declined to discuss the probable purchase price and said further particulars of the transaction must come from spokesmen for Mr. Ford or officials of the syndicate.

The holdings of the Peabody Syndicate in Kentucky embrace approximately 125,000 acres of rich coal and timber lands located in Bell, Harlan, Clay, Perry, Leslie and Letcher counties, according to Kentucky operators. The property practically is undeveloped and much of it is beyond present railroad facilities. It was pointed out, however, that in practically every instance the tracts are easily reached by transportation development projects.

The Detroit manufacturer already has gained a firm footing in Kentucky coal fields. In 1919 he purchased the Banner Fork property in Harlan county, which now has a capacity of sixty cars a day. Recently he purchased the 20,000 acres of property in Pike county of the Pond Creek Coal Company.

SOCIETY

Two interesting and enjoyable features of the meeting of the Home League which was held yesterday afternoon at the hospitable home of Mrs. John M. Stockham, "Beefwood Heights," were the papers by Mrs. Irene O'Brien and Mrs. Joseph A. Patton. Mrs. O'Brien spoke on "Correct Dressing," and illustrated her remarks with pictures on the right way to dress, which were very interesting and instructive. Mrs. Patton also supplemented her talk on "Paintings of American Home Life" with beautiful illustrations.

The musical numbers on the program were also very pleasing. Mrs. R. G. Gilmore, who was a guest for the afternoon, sang beautifully, "Winter Memories" by Bertrand Brown. Mrs. E. H. Dailley, in addition to her duties as assistant hostess for the afternoon, delighted the members with a very charming song, "Duna," by Josephine McGill.

Mrs. J. M. Stockham also rendered a delightful piano number, "Woodland Idyl," by Camille W. Zecher. The other numbers included the singing of "Home Sweet Home" by the Club; Scripture Reading by Mrs. Albert Reiser; the Sunshine Corner by Mrs. Fred Baker, and the Roll Call, which was answered by quotations about mothers.

During the social hour which followed, Mrs. Stockham and Mrs. Dailley were assisted by Miss Violet Stockham in serving a delicious refreshment course.

Officers for the Ladies' Militant Auxiliary of Orient Encampment were installed by Captain Ernest S. White last night. The officers are: President, Mrs. Lillian Gulick; Vice-President, Mrs. Rosalie White; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Boyles; Financial Secretary, Mrs. Mary Cottle; Treasurer, Mrs. Lydia Hauck.

House Rejects Two Cent Gasoline Tax; May Accept One Cent Taxation

COLUMBUS, O., March 23.—Following yesterday to enact a gasoline tax of two cents a gallon, the house of representatives today was preparing to try to pass a measure providing for a tax of one cent per gallon. The two cents proposal failed by a vote of 59 to 56, the bill requiring 67 votes to pass it.

Though an amendment to reduce the proposed tax to one cent failed yesterday by a vote of 47 to 56, it is anticipated that with the one cent tax definitely beaten, the one cent proposal now may stand a better show of enactment. Several members who voted against the bill stated that they did so because of the high tax, but that they would support a one cent tax.

The bill is up again today on reconsideration taken immediately after its failure late yesterday. The motion to reconsider was made by Representative Understein, Republican of Cincinnati, who had voted against the bill with its two cent provision. The motion to reconsider carried by a vote of 65 to 44.

Two vital amendments were placed in the gasoline tax bill yesterday. One offered by Minority Leader Al Kluson requires filling stations to install visible tanks on their pumps so the motorist may not be given short measure. The other by Representative Taft, Republican of Cincinnati, requires division of the tax to be made on the basis of 30 per cent to the cities on the basis of number of motor vehicles, 30 per cent to the counties for county roads and forty per cent to counties for state roads.

The house yesterday passed the bill by Representative Freeman, Republican, of Hardin county that places motor buses and commercial trucks under utilities commission regulation and greatly increases the taxes on them. The schedule of taxes on buses operating between fixed termini is $14 to $200, buses not operating between fixed termini $14 to $210; trucks operating between fixed termini $10 to $250; trucks not operating between fixed termini $10 to $250.

The bill now goes to the senate. Only two votes were cast against the bill.

The house also passed the biennial appropriation bill carrying a total of $72,000,208.55 and sent it to the senate.

Bribery

An admission during cross-examination that she "ought to be behind the bars" for her acts in behalf of the Israelite House of David, marked the testimony in federal court here today of Esther Hansell, for thirteen years private secretary to Benjamin David Purnell, head of the cult, in the suit instituted by her parents at law against Purnell. The witness during cross examination declared she had violated the law for Purnell, "believing it was the faith."

"I was a partner of Benjamin in every crooked and deceitful deal in the cult," she testified. "I perjured myself and lied. Benjamin and I both ought to be behind the bars."

The witness said she had committed perjury in connection with a previous court trial. Describing the hardships of members of the colony, the witness said:

"I never saw a cripple admitted to the House of David. The qualification for membership was money, a strong back and a weak mind, or else a good trade." She had testified on direct examination that Purnell had made large profits off the labor of his followers.

"It was in harmony with the teaching of the cult's faith," the witness said, "to change facts so that the members of the organization might not cast pearls before swine."

The witness described at length the mode of living among the followers of Purnell. Referring to a trip taken by girl members of the colony from Benton Harbor to Long Island, a bit of land in Lake Michigan owned by the cult, she said:

"The girls slept in covered wagons on the boat like pigs in a sty. Benjamin was aboard and visited the wagons at night."

Humble members of the colony who worked for Purnell were given poor food, she testified. The bill of fare consisted of vegetable soup, containing coconut oil, instead of grease, baked carrots or carrots or rutabagas, one slice of bread for each person and berries that were unfit for the market.

In the winter the followers were given skimmed milk, she said. Although thousands of cans of fruit were put up, the "gulls" of the cult never were permitted to eat any of it, Mrs. Hansell said. Products of the colony never were given to the followers if they could be sold at a profit, the witness declared.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I am 12 years of age, 5 feet tall and weigh 100 pounds, and the school nurse who goes around and tells you everything, says I am 13 years of age, and five feet one inch tall. He weighs 103 pounds and she said he was four pounds over weight. I study hygiene and I looked this up and it says my brother should only weigh 97 pounds and I should weigh 94 pounds. Why don't the nurse's figures correspond with my school book. They can't both be right. Now Dolly, I want you to settle this question and tell us our correct weight for our height and age.

COUNTRY SCHOOL GIRL.
According to the U. S. Government's Table of Heights and Weights of Children, you are both wrong. You are a little over four inches too tall for your age. A twelve year old girl should be 55.5 inches tall and weigh 78.3 pounds. A thirteen year old boy should be 57.2 inches tall and weigh 88.7 pounds. A few inches and a few pounds more or less does not make much difference in a growing child. If you are not losing weight, and feel all right forget about your height and weight.

Dear Miss Wise—Is it proper to shake hands when being introduced to some one? Some say it is old fashioned. What do you say?

THANKS.
It is quite proper to shake hands with some people and quite unnecessary to shake hands with others. For instance, a hostess usually extends her hand to any guest or stranger presented to her. An older lady may always shake hands with a younger one presented to her, or with a gentleman. Some acknowledge an introduction merely by a formal bow. This is all that is necessary or desirable for a casual introduction; but if the introduction is special, the meeting of two who are dear friends of a third more cordially should be shown, and the hand be extended as a sign of this cordiality. A gentleman should not offer to shake hands with a lady, but must wait for her to make the advance. An older lady gives her hand to a younger; in short it is the privilege of the person to whom another is presented to shake hands or not, and there is nothing old fashioned about it. Members of a household should always extend their hand to a guest.

Dear Dolly—Can you tell me if you have to give the name of the town in which you live or can you take up a temporary residence at some hotel in a town where you expect to secure a marriage license?

JACKSON READER.
The law says a marriage license must be procured in the county in which the bride lives, but this law is not enforced in very many counties, and it is possible to secure a marriage license almost anywhere in Ohio, Kentucky or West Virginia without any trouble. I notice the bride usually gives her residence at a certain hotel when the license is obtained in Cincinnati, but in this city, and Ironport, Ashland, Cattedburg, Greenport or Huntington, W. Va., they just give their home address and get away with it all right. Take my advice and get married in your "old home town."

Dear Dolly—How much should a boy sixteen years of age, and 5 ft. 5 1/2 in., in height weigh?

A boy of that age should weigh about 121 pounds, more or less.

Dear Dolly—Will you please print some names and addresses of kennels where they have dogs to sell.

A READER.
You can buy most any kind of a dog you want in this city, and you can find the addresses of various kennels in the backs of popular magazines. Inquire at a book store or news stand for the names of those that carry these advertisements.

LOLLY-POP—A father or mother can dispose of their property without leaving any of it to their children. Some people have an idea that they have to leave each child a small sum so they can't break their will, but it isn't necessary to do this. They may leave one child the property and ignore the others, or leave it to charity and cut off all the children.

JUST KIDS—Far be it from me to help children run off and get married. If I knew your names I would tell your mother to tie you to her apron strings until you passed through the "foolish stage". You can't get married at seventeen, without your parent's consent and you might as well get that idea out of your head as soon as possible. When you get old enough to marry, write me again and I will give you all the details you want to know about the ceremony, what to wear, etc. etc. Since you live on my street, I am just a little curious to know your name, so if you don't mind, you can mail it in or call me up, and we'll talk it over.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The Twins went with the pretty Scrap-Picture Shepherdess in Sugar-Plum Land.

"I'll tell you where the Cut-Out Lady lives," she said, "if you two will do me a favor."

"Oh, yes, indeed, we'll be glad to," replied Nancy, obligingly. So they walked back through the field of lolly-pops and past the chocolate-bud bushes and the trees full of sundae, and the soda fountain and the stalls of pop-corn balls, toward the granulated sugar Easter-egg, where the Scrap-Picture Shepherdess said she lived.

The Twins turned their heads away this time, however. They had no appetite for any more goodies. "We've got sick eating so much," Nick explained. "We want to find the Cut-Out Lady to see if she can give us some medicine."

"Come and help me and you won't need any medicine," smiled the pretty Shepherdess. Just then they arrived at the white granulated sugar Easter-egg. It had pink candy fluting all around the edges of the round doorway.

"Look in and see what you see," said the Shepherdess. She smiled sweetly and shook her golden curls and held out her blue skirts and pointed her tiny slippers—all so daintily that Nancy expected to see a room inside of the doorway—a gold and silver and satin room befitting so lovely a person. But behold!

Through the doorway, instead of a room, another country met the children's astonished gaze—a country with green grass and a barn and cows and pigs and sheep and chickens.

"That's my farm," said the Shepherdess. "I need help with the milking and haying and chicken feeding and sheep-tending. If you'll help me

"We'll come," cried the Twins, and they stepped through the pink candy doorway of the big white granulated sugar Easter-egg, right onto the farm of the pretty Shepherdess.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

With a big dog running after them it was to be expected that the little Peppermints could not keep in line. Their march to the chocolate factory was halted while Jack grabbed hold of Fly. "Now you can go ahead in safety," said Jack, and the Peppermints were once more on their way.

After a short march they suddenly came upon a big, fancy-looking thing. It was a "Chocolate Pot." "This," said Caramel, "is the Candy Land chocolate factory." Then he told Jack to stop and watch the little Peppermints have their chocolate overcoats made to order for them.

BY ELTON

EVANGELIST ANDERSON DELIVERS FORCEFUL SERMON ON SIN

SAYS IT WAS SIN THAT MADE HELL AND DAMNS ONE'S SOUL

(By E. L. Schenck)

"God never does and never has sent souls to hell. It is a sin that does. It was a sin that made hell and grips a man's soul and drags him into the bottomless pit of despair and everlasting remorse. If men will only leave sin alone, the question of hell is settled; but so long as men reject God and refuse the ministrations of Christ, hell is a moral necessity," declared Evangelist George Wood Anderson Thursday night in the big garage-tabernacle, where close to three thousand persons gathered to hear the New Crusade's sermon on "God's Love and Future Punishment."

The above statement made by Dr. Anderson answers clearly and fully the question of God's love and that sin will surely be punished, and in his sermon last night he enlarged on this by giving numerous illustrations of God's saving power and how the unrepenting sinner was punished. It was a sermon that struck home for Dr. Anderson in his closing days of the New Crusade campaign is bringing messages that carry a direct soul-saving appeal to his great congregations.

The rain last night did not have much effect on the attendance for the crowd was as big as the previous night. The business girls came in a body after supper at Trinity church and there was close to 200 in this special delegation. Lucasville and Valley Chapel M. E. church also sent delegations. There are only three more nights of the revival and each night is expected to find every seat taken.

Evangelist Anderson took as his text last night well known passage of John 3:10: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." This record tells of the love of God, but does not mention the punishment of sinners, but that was no problem for a speaker of Bible truths like Dr. Anderson, who brought out so clearly how sin is surely punished and how the only safe escape from sin is through the acceptance of the love of God, who indures everlasting life.

"Everlasting life and eternal death stand face to face. Christ came to save men from hell and during his ministry never failed to proclaim the reality of a place of future punishment," said Dr. Anderson, who then explained that the Bible, although supreme authority on all spiritual and moral questions, does not have to be turned to in an effort to find the fundamentals that underlie the teachings of Jesus regarding punishment of sin both in this world and in the next. He showed that a person's own experience was sufficient to teach that there are laws governing both the physical and spiritual natures and that when broken suffering follows.

Continuing, the evangelist said: "Punishment comes in true proportion to our sins and in a most natural manner. Death works no change in the soul as it deals only with the flesh. It is the soul that suffers for it lives on after death. There is only one difference between the suffering beyond and the suffering here and that is an increase in its intensity with the passing of eternity. Sin in this world is not punished outwardly but inwardly through a man's conscience. We have no reason for expecting anything else after death. There the soul will suffer inwardly from the memory of lost opportunities and unrepented sins."

"Many give for an excuse that they suffer here in this world, but years of suffering will not purify for suffering will not wash away sinful spots that blight the soul. Punishment will last as long as the stubborn will and suffering hardens instead of weakening men's wills," said Dr. Anderson, whose closing remark was "Men need not perish. God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that men might be saved, and only an acceptance of this belief and a lasting trust in God will gain for the sinner a place in the Kingdom of God instead of an everlasting punishment."

GOD'S LOVE AND FUTURE PUNISHMENT

(Copyright, 1923, George Wood Anderson.)

(Text: For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. John 3:16.)

How men can quote this verse of scripture to prove the love of God and speak slightly of sin, and the fearful consequences of sinful living. I cannot understand. God sent his son that men might not perish. All heaven and all hell are crowded into this verse. Everlasting life and eternal death stand face to face. Every sensible man knows that he who would not send his son to suffer as he suffered and to die in such a dreadful manner as he did unless there had been something awful to save a man from.

Christ came to save men from hell and during his ministry never failed to proclaim the reality of a place of future punishment. When he saw the priesthood of his day setting at naught the things of God and placing emphasis upon outward forms, he told them plainly that they were wretched sepietres, hypocrites, who could not escape the damnation of hell. Speaking of those who were angry with their brothers, he declared that they were "in danger of hell fire." Looking at the sin-smitten multitudes he exclaimed: "Whether it be thy hand or thy foot offend thee; it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire. If thine eye offend thee pluck it out, and cast it from thee; it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye rather than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire."

If in the sight of Jesus, whose utterances are always tempered with mercy and whose ministries are ever of the most tender and loving nature, hell is a place of such terrible suffering that he would urge his followers to take the most desperate methods to avoid it, we certainly should give his words reverent attention. When he says that rather than yield to temptations that come through the eye it were better to pluck the eyeballs from their sockets; rather than yield to temptation by walking forbidden paths it were better to cut off the feet; and rather than sin with the hands to cut them off and go crippled through life, Jesus Christ was talking with an earnestness and a power, that no individual can ignore or trifle with.

I do not care what men say in criticism of the doctrine of future punishment. When there is a contradiction between the theory of some scientist and the positive teachings of Jesus, I always choose the teachings of Jesus. My reason for this is that there is not one single fact that science has established that has contradicted a single teaching of Jesus. If in the years of study they had found one single fact that disproves Jesus as the perfect teacher, then will I listen to them, but since every discovery proves his accuracy I am going to cling to his every word and utterance. When there is a contradiction today I know that it is not because Jesus is wrong but because science has not yet developed sufficiently to discover the real truth.

The doctrine that ignores future punishment for sin are founded on weak human sentiment and not on the real experience of men. They are "misbeliefs" as I describe in my little booklet called "Modern Misbeliefs" and are endeavoring to get a foothold by denying the evil consequences of sin and yet they do not deny that sin and yet they do not deny that sin is the smallest organizations and have the smallest congregations. They never will hold commanding position because they are untrue to the deepest experiences of every human heart, and men will not accept that which is untrue to their own experience. Men want their philosophies built upon facts which they are agreeable or not. I don't like the idea of the small-pox, but when the small-pox germs begin to play havoc with my system I don't want any doctor treating me for the chicken-pox and no trustworthy physician would do so.

Now the truth of the matter is that while the Bible is supreme authority on all spiritual and moral questions, you do not have to turn to its pages to find the fundamentals that underlie the teachings of Jesus regarding the punishment of sin in both this world and the next.

Let us stop for a while this evening and see what our own experience has taught us on this subject. We have lived long enough in this world to know that sin is always punished. Laws govern both the physical and spiritual natures. A broken law means suffering. Touch fire and you suffer with a burned or scalded hand. Taste poison and you become sick. Overlook the stomach and the penalty is indigestion. Sit in a draught and you suffer from a cold. Tell a falsehood and your brain burns with a scorching guilt. Take God's name in vain and you suffer the death of all your nobler feelings toward God. Harsh another and you suffer a thousand fold from a guilty conscience. Sin secretly and the fear of exposure will turn each waking moment into a hell. A young man at one of the division points of the Big Four road where a large tabernacle campaign began stealing from the passing trains. At first it was great sport but at last he suffered so that when the officer arrested him he said: "Thank God, it is all over. I have never heard a sound or footfall on the steps or platform that I did not become petrified with terror, thinking it was someone seeking my arrest. I am always paying the price for our sins. We always pay the price for our sins. Memory will not permit us to forget. We may bury them ever so deep and say that men shall never know, but their hour of resurrection will surely come and the heart will bleed as it is torn by memory's relentless hand."

The second thing that we have learned from experience is that the suffering from sin always follows in a perfectly natural manner. Many times we have said: "My punishment is greater than I can bear," but never once has any of us dared say that the punishment was unjust. Punishment comes in true proportion to our sins and in a most natural manner. It was not live coals that God sprinkled out upon us to blister the skin; we were not thrust into a dungeon cell; neither were we haunted by evil spirits or stinging serpents. Such punishment would have been forced upon us by some power from without, and while we were being punished we might not understand for what sin the suffering was visited upon us, but suffering from sin does not come from without but from within. When the sin began the punishment began, and comes in such a natural manner that no one has ever doubted for what sin we suffered. Just as a grain stalk points straight to a little seed that was planted in the soil, so every punishment points straight to some definite sin, and we always recognize it without any question or doubting.

Punishment is Awful

The third fact that we have learned from experience is that the punishment of sin is always awful in its nature. There is no form of outward persecution that can compare with it. To free one's self from its terrors many a man has surrendered to an officer, believing that a prison cell, or even death itself was preferable to the torments of a guilty conscience. A man in an eastern city committed murder and escaped without being suspected of the deed. To make himself doubly secure he went west and under an assumed name built up a prosperous business and was looked upon as an honored man. After a while his conscience awoke. He could not sleep. His days were filled with forebodings. Selling his possessions, he boarded a train for the city of his crime, where he surrendered. The crime had been forgotten and the search for the murderer had ended years before, but he insisted upon arrest, plead guilty at the trial, was sentenced to death and went to the scaffold with a smile on his face, believing that death would be a relief from the fire that burned within his bosom. The punishment of sin is always terrible.

The fourth fact that we have learned is that this suffering does not stop with death. Suffering from remorse one may seek relief in death, but we know that that will not relieve their sufferings. Death works no change in the soul. Death deals only with the flesh, making it insensible to pain. But the punishment for sin is seldom physical. It is the soul that suffers and the soul lives on after death. I open the door of a cage and allow a bird to escape. I have worked no inward change in the nature, disposition or habits of the bird. I have only changed its abode. Death opens the cage, leaving the soul escape from the body and fly to other realms, but it has not changed the nature of the soul. What it was before death the soul is now. It retains its will, carries its stored-up memories and retains its sensitiveness to pain and suffering. This does not seem strange for the body, this is always superior to the body. Cut off the hands and the soul still lives. Cut off both feet and the soul is not harmed. Blind the eye, deafen the ear, paralyze the tongue, paralyze the muscles and still the soul is unaffected. In the midst of the greatest physical pain the soul may have con-

Sparks From The Anvil Of Geo. Wood Anderson

We cannot prove that God is a God of love and deny that he is a just God.

God would not have sent His only begotten Son into the world to save men unless there was something to save them from.

Eternal life and eternal death face each other in the Golden Text of the Bible, John 3:16.

Jesus was never harsh nor extravagant in his utterances. I have never found a man yet who did not make mistakes. Jesus made no mistakes, therefore I take Him.

When science proves a fact that contradicts the teachings of Jesus Christ then I'll follow science.

The sentimental theory that God is too good to send a soul to hell or that he is too good to make a hell, is all rot. God will not send your soul to hell, you will go there yourself. He's trying to save you.

If we sin we are punished. If we disobey the laws of health we must pay the price.

The judgment day is going to be a day filled with surprises.

ment is greater than I can bear," but never once has any of us dared say that the punishment was unjust. Punishment comes in true proportion to our sins and in a most natural manner. It was not live coals that God sprinkled out upon us to blister the skin; we were not thrust into a dungeon cell; neither were we haunted by evil spirits or stinging serpents. Such punishment would have been forced upon us by some power from without, and while we were being punished we might not understand for what sin the suffering was visited upon us, but suffering from sin does not come from without but from within. When the sin began the punishment began, and comes in such a natural manner that no one has ever doubted for what sin we suffered. Just as a grain stalk points straight to a little seed that was planted in the soil, so every punishment points straight to some definite sin, and we always recognize it without any question or doubting.

There is only one difference between the suffering beyond and the suffering here, and that is an increase of its intensity with the passing of eternity. That is the effect of eternal life. The thoughtless sinner becomes monstrous as their consequences come to light and eternity is the harvest field where men shall reap the consequences of their Christian or sinful lives. There one will behold all their deeds in the light of eternity. Freed from the restrictions and limitations of time and temporal affairs, our sins will stand out vaster and more awful in their proportions than we could have ever suspected here. How may we know this? Read it out of your own experience. There have been sins in your past life, committed in unguarded moments that did not seem to be very bad and gave to them little thought. Suddenly, long afterward, in the light of a new revelation we saw those sins as they really are. We saw in their true awfulness and in an instant we were suffering mental and spiritual anguish. New truths and new revelations cause our smallest and most thoughtless sins to stand out in hideous proportions. So in the world after death. In the light of its revelations we will see the true relations and true meanings of all our sins, and as we see them arise from out the shadows of their hideousness will strike terror to the soul. The suffering of the next world will be even worse than in this world. Tongue cannot tell, imagination cannot grasp the awfulness that follows sin when one sees it in the light of God's presence in an unending world.

Now these truths gleaned, not from books or men-made creeds, but out of our own daily experiences, and which can be duplicated in the lives of every man and woman in the world, demand consideration. Especially is this true when one of these contradict any other established truth in any known realm of knowledge. The only conclusion is that there must be a place where the wicked suffer.

But you say: "How do you reconcile that with the love of God?" There is no reconciliation needed. God never made hell. God made a sinless planet for men in this world and heaven for the souls throughout eternity. God never thrust a soul into hell, but "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." God not only refuses to send a soul to hell, but He does all He can to keep a man from going there.

Get away with that weak, insane, sentimentalism that excuses sin and apologizes for not believing in the Lord Jesus Christ on the ground that you have such a high and lofty conception of God that you do not believe that He could have the heart to send a soul to hell. God never does and never has sent souls to hell. It is a sin that does that. It was sin that made hell and its sin that grips a man's soul and drags him into the bottomless pit of despair and everlasting remorse. If men will leave sin alone the question of hell is settled; but so long as men reject God and refuse the ministrations of Christ and the Holy Spirit, hell is a moral necessity.

No Chamber of Horrors

Concerning its nature we have already seen that it cannot be a chamber of horrors fitted up to hurt the wicked. To represent the home of the lost soul as a dungeon of horrors where instruments await writhing victims is not only contrary to our conception of God but absolutely incredible. Sin is punished in this world, not outwardly with fire and serpents, but inwardly in a natural and spiritual manner. We have no reason for expecting anything else after death. There will be a place where the soul suffers, not from outward things, but where one will suffer from the memory of lost opportunities and unrepented sins. I believe that such a place where the sinful can hide from the face of God is a moral necessity, and God would not permit such a place. To compel all men to enter his presence and spend eternity would be far more cruel than for God to thrust them into the most dreadful hell ever conceived by pagan priest. When men persist in sin, bringing upon themselves indescribable suffering, God is too good to intensify that suffering by compelling them to remain in his immediate presence. God never sends souls to a world of punishment, they go of their own accord just as you try to keep away from some whom you have wronged. You succeed, but you do not get away from your conscience, and all alone in the silence you suffer from your wrong-doing. It is sin, not God, that drives men into its depths.

The other night in the incident of Lazarus and Dives we noticed the impossibility of a second probation, now we must observe that it is eternity long in its duration. Both reason and experience cries out: "forever and forever." There are many reasons for believing in the eternal punishment of the wicked. First, there is no reason for thinking that the souls of the wicked will not live as long as the souls of the righteous. The same word "everlasting" applies to both heaven and hell. Second, there is no power in sin to destroy personality and therefore we cannot believe in annihilation. Sin does not dissolve personality. The worst sin-wrecked individual in the world would influence and is just as much a living soul as though he had been a Christian. We have no scientific or philosophic or spiritual reason for believing that sin can perform a work of annihilation. Third, we cannot say that suffering of eternity will purify the soul and fit it for heaven, for all we know about suffering is that it has no purifying power. We have seen that in the life of a little child. Punish it ever so hard and it persists in continuing its disobedient acts. Locking it up it will say, "I will not; I will not!" Suffering alone does not purify and thousands of years of the most intense pain is not sufficient to wash clean one spot from the soul of men. Fourth, we cannot believe that the suffering of the other world is reformatory in its effect. In the first place, if it were reformatory it would be God-imposed, while the truth is all sufferings of the next world are the natural working out of one's own sins and are therefore self-imposed. If God could compel a man by torturing him to become pure and fit for heaven he would do so in this world and not wait for eternity. The truth is that God has no desire to compel any man to do anything against his own judgment. There is nothing reformatory in suffering. Fifth, punishment will last so long as the stubborn will and suffering hardens instead of weakening men's wills.

Resisting God

We have known of children whose wills were too strong for their parents to conquer. In madness we have seen them leave their homes and live lives of the most extreme hardships, preferring a hovel to their father's home. Nothing could compel them to change their stubborn wills. They suffered for bread and longed for friends but they would not give up their wills. They would see their mothers broken hearted crying for their comfort, they have seen their fathers go with white hairs to the grave, and laugh at their suffering. A message calling them to the death bed of their mother was torn up, trampled beneath their feet, and their mother's name and memory were muttered with curses. Madened with sin there is nothing that could change their minds and bring them to reason. The horrors of eternal torment could not take the laugh from their lips or the foolish hatred from their hearts. So far as we can learn there is no limit to the power of the will to resist God. To stop the suffering of the next world God would have to weaken the wills of every sinner, and the moment that he did that very attribute which would make man valuable to heaven and heaven attractive to him. It is the power to will that makes man worth the saving, and heaven is for those who will do the things of God and hell for those who will disobey and resist God.

But men need not perish. God so loved the world that no man need be lost. The thought of hell does not trouble me so far as I am personally concerned. I tremble when I think of the peril of many of my friends and loved ones and pray for their redemption. But I am not troubled with fears of hell any more than I am afraid of dandruff with delirium tremens. I do not fear delirium tremens because I have never yet touched one drop of liquor and by the grace of God I never will. No one has ever died of alcoholism who had refused to touch the first drink. So no man needs fear hell-fire. God so loved the world that He gave His Son to save us if—It is only reasonable that we should be willing to do something in return for such a gift. Therefore there is a condition to salvation, but one within the reach of every sinful person, simply to believe in Jesus Christ.

Reserve Board "Dirt Farmer" Member Dies

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23—A cerebral hemorrhage proved fatal to Mr. D. Campbell, of Michigan, recently appointed to the Federal Reserve Board, death occurring yesterday before he could be removed from the golf links of the Columbia Country Club, where he had collapsed.

Mr. Campbell, in company with former Senator Townsend of Michigan, had just completed four holes of golf when he was stricken. Though complaining of a cold, Mr. Campbell otherwise had been in the best of health. He attended a Board meeting in the morning.

Mr. Campbell was sworn in as "dirt farmer" member of the Reserve Board only a week ago. He is survived by a widow.

Mr. Campbell whose home was at Coldwater, Mich., was president of the National Milk Producers Association and was widely known as a practical farmer. He was named a member of the reserve board by President Harding under a new law authorizing former representation on the board and took office about a week ago.

Thin? Run-down? Sure Way to Get Right Weight

Increase Your Red-Blood Cells. That's the Sure Way! S. S. S. Builds Blood—Calts! This Means Strength!

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often means low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become strong. That's why S. S. S. since 1908, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Follow these hints. You are being a calamity-maker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Ladies and gentlemen, a peppy, bony face doesn't make you look very important or pretty, does it? Take S. S. S. It contains only the most reliable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

No Let Down In Enthusiasm As Crusade Nears Closing Day

(By F. W. Sheridan)

As the Dr. George Wood Anderson Crusade enters upon the last lap, there is not the remotest sign of a diminishing enthusiasm. If anything the interest sweeps higher and higher and those who were a little dubious that a sag was sure to come, have turned up their harps and it's now a united happy band of folks who are going down the line in solid mass formation, ready and anxious to carry on until the last song is sung, the last prayer uttered and the shuffling of feet ceases. Last night was anything but conducive to a crowd, but the people flocked in Joves and when Dr. Anderson, his eyes flashing enthusiasm and his well knit frame tingling with eagerness, faced that throng of more than three thousand souls, the crusaders were lined up in solid phalanx and late comers would have had a mighty hard time finding a seat that was not occupied.

Many of the doubting Thomases feared the rain would dampen the ardor, or at least hamper the attendance, but nothing doing along either line. The crowd was there in great abundance and there was enough ardor to pass around to the entire religious world. Taken all in all, the meeting will go down in the little day book as one of the best of the Crusade, for at the close of the sermon, when Dr. Anderson so skillfully tossed out the life line, there was a gathering of men, women and children into the convert section that completely filled a block of five seats. More than 100 people came forward and grasped the honest hand of the Belle Center evangelist, all of which goes to show that the Crusade is moving forward, onward and upward, much to the happy satisfaction of the leaders who are anticipating a Pentecostal shower of blessings before the campaign comes to a close. Dr. Anderson is a leader who will not tolerate any let-ups or slackening. He is driving straight ahead with all the power of his brain, body and soul and there is such a cordiality among the crusaders that they are giving him that whole hearted backing, without which his efforts might fall far short. He is preaching the distilled truth, drilling in his words until they bring results. Last night there were probably 90 per cent of the converts who had never before made any public profession; religiously speaking and that in itself, conclusively demonstrates what I have been contending for: i. e., that the eloquent evangelist hits the center.

His sermon last night was one of his best, if there is any superlative degree in his addresses. "All are so good, that I really am taking a chance when I have the hardihood to put one above the other. Those who have heard him once have remarked that his address was a masterpiece, and that's true—all are, but the one that is so appealing, so penetrating that it gripped the people and held their undivided attention from beginning to end. It was one that was so practical that no one but could apply it. Some of his sermons may sail over my dome like a kite, others may entertain like a Chautauqua address, but last night, believe me, there was no avenue of escape, and ducking did no good. If you tried to counter, he scored first and into a jab that made your teeth rattle and your knees sag. He said with all the emphasis that he could command and at a time when every ear was strained and every eye riveted "God never sent a man to hell—sin sends a man to hell." And when he got to talking about remorse of conscience—well, believe me, I've seen the time when his description would have not only fit my case but others who were in the crowd, too. You simply can't get from under when Dr. Anderson starts out on the war path, take it from this end of the type-writer.

As stated, the crowd was of wonderful proportions, and it was swelled mightily by that splendid delegation of good looking business women, who were there to the number of at least 250, maybe a trifle more. And Lucasville was there and so was Valley Chapel. In fact it looked from the press box as though Valley Center outnumbered Lucasville, the capital of Valley Township. Anywhere there were 125 in the bunch and there is no question but they were well repaid for their trip.

At the conclusion of the services, Miss Vesta Stockham called Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, Chorister Walter F. Jenkins and Pianist Bentley D. Ackley to the platform, and on behalf of the choir, presented each with a pretty box of bon bons, and better still, each box contained a $5 gold piece. Knowing the liberality of the four, some kind hearted and thoughtful sister who was on the inside, whispered that perhaps it would be best to open the cartons right then and there. When Jenkins saw that five dollar gold piece he yelled "hallo-eh!" so loud that I feared the foundation would give way and quickly moved where a sector was supported by a stronger joist. It was a mighty happy occasion all around, very thoughtful on the part of the big choir and much appreciated by Dr. Anderson and his party. Dr. Anderson responded and the buck was passed to the modest Ackley who got by very gracefully, his speech of acceptance consisting of but two words, "Thank You." But Dr. Anderson picked up the Ackley radio message and completed it in his usual graceful and tactful manner. He stated that he was never with a better bunch of people, that he and his helpers loved Portsmouth folks and that he was extremely sorry that the days of parting were so near at hand. Then the choir sang "Keep Sweet," and a start was made for home.

Hidden Values They Keep Essex Young

From the first Essex wins the admiration of owners.

But the greatest Essex enthusiasts are those who have driven their cars 50,000 miles or more. They have discovered the hidden values.

Design and construction details not observable in the new car assert their importance as use increases. They keep the car young.

Essex values extend to the minute details. The finest bearings made are used throughout. They are to an automobile what jewels are to a watch. Parts that wear are inexpensively replaced.

In chassis and body, Essex throughout possesses qualities essential to long hard service. That means economical service, always.

Essex is the only American car with roller bearings in the valve mechanism. This construction overcomes wear and frictional loss at one of the most important points. Prevents noise and saves a big item of replacement expense. All other cars use plain bearings for this vital function. Just another of the hidden values that account for the everlasting goodness of Essex cars.

Itching PILES

PAZO OINTMENT instantly Relieves ITCHING PILES and you can get restful sleep after the first application. All druggists are authorized to refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of ITCHING, BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES. Cures ordinary cases in 5 days, the worst cases in 14 days. 60c.

The initiation exercises and entertainment held by River City Aerie of Eagles Thursday night was a huge success, more than 300 members, including a number of visitors, being present. Chief among the visitors was Frank B. Pratt of Ironton, who was first president of the local Aerie after it was organized 18 years ago. He was called upon for a speech and responded with a splendid address. Interesting talks were also made by Mayor William N. Gableman, Safety Director St. Straus, Louis C. Peck, Otto Lauffer and James Jones of Ironton.

A class of 75 candidates was expected at the meeting last night but more than half of this number were unable to be present because of work and other conflicting matters. The class was sufficiently large however to be impressive and the ceremonial was handled in excellent style by those in charge. Those who were not initiated last night will be taken into the order in May.

The officers of the Eagles are: Dr. Joseph H. Gill, Worthing President; William Stalger, Past Worthing President; Paul Bauer, Vice President; Oscar Franck, Chaplain; and Elmer Kader, Conductor. These men with the degree team had charge of the initiation.

Following the initiation the members enjoyed talks by the various members, a lunch and smoker. A feature of the evening was a surprise entertainment. The committee in charge of arrangements for the meeting last night was composed of St. Straus, Oscar Franck, Frank Rogers, and Mr. Joseph Gill.

A boat excursion will be held on the Hoher Smith April 19 under the auspices of the River City Aerie.

Huntington Exchangeites Get Charter; Local Members Take Part In Exercises

Twenty-seven members of the Portsmouth Exchange Club journeyed to Huntington yesterday and attended a banquet given by the Huntington Exchange Club at which the host-club received its charter from National Secretary Herold (K.) M. Harter of Toledo, O. The meeting was held at the Frederick Hotel.

Russell K. McCurdy of the Portsmouth Club was one of the speakers of the evening, and delivered a splendid address which was given a round of applause by the Exchangeites.

Linwood T. Holt of the Huntington club delivered the address of welcome, and J. George Bender, president of the Huntington organization, accepted the charter in the name of the club.

Harold Lloyd's latest picture, "Safety Last", was shown following the program. It was while making a scene for this picture that the Human Fly was killed in New York recently.

The Huntington Exchange Club has been organized for about nine months, and is one of the liveliest organizations of its kind in the country. This club meets every Thursday at noon.

The Portsmouth Exchangeites were given a royal reception in Huntington, and extended the Huntingtonites a cordial invitation to visit the local club.

Portsmouth men making the trip were: Eric Ferguson, Dr. F. A. Coburn, Heron M. Johnson, Wallace Drew, Forest Williams, George Breese, Leslie White, T. K. Brushart, R. K. McCurdy, O. B. Oakes, Rae Solby, Clarence E. Nodder, D. E. Gardner, George M. Taylor, James D. Williams, D. D. Mitchell, W. H. Ruggles, C. M. Donnellson, P. D. Rawson, A. N. Horst, J. M. Babcock, Dr. C. L.

Cuticura Heals Itching Burning Eczema On Head

"When I was about two years of age I broke out with eczema. First it started in small spots and then ran together until my head was covered with sores. There were also a few spots on my face. It caused great disfigurement and loss of sleep. The itching and burning were something awful, causing me to be very cross."

"My parents decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the first treatment there was immediate relief, and before they had finished one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) George Bolke, DuPo, Illinois.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are all you need for every-day toilet and nursery purposes.

Sample Book Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Lab., Portland, Me., U.S.A." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Talcum 50c. Cuticura Soap shaves without soap.

BUY GROUND; TO OPEN NEW ADDITION

Through an important deal closed yesterday by the Ricker Realty Co., the 17 acres of land east of Brant Avenue and south of the Boulevard were purchased by Thomas Dupuy, James Bannon, Edward Ricker and J. E. Ricker, from Charles Noel of Scioto Trail. The consideration was said to be approximately $30,000.

The purchase of this land means another fine addition for the city upon which will be built ten up to date homes next summer. The ground will be platted off into 80 lots; the streets will be paved; sidewalks, water and gas pipes will be laid and sewers will be installed. According to present plans a street will be paved connecting the addition with Sunrise Avenue. J. E. Ricker will have charge of the improvements, which will begin immediately.

The ten homes will be placed on the market, following their completion, while the seventy lots will be ready for sale just as soon as the platting is finished.

NEW CARPET CLEANING CO. IN OPERATION

Portsmouth's newest concern, "The Peerless Carpet Cleaning Co.," opened its doors for business at Clay street and Robinson avenue, Wednesday. The company, which will be managed by Leslie Taylor, who is one of the principal owners, is one of the best equipped plants of its kind in the state.

All the machinery, which is new, is motor driven and there is no question but the concern will do a flourishing business. Every rug or carpet is thoroughly cleaned by washing, and when they are returned they look exactly like new. The cleaning department is in the front of the building, while the drying rooms are in the rear. The washing compound is absolutely harmless to the finest texture, and guaranteed not to cause any colors to run or fade. Mr. Taylor was for several years employed by the Whitaker-Glessner Co., and of late has been connected with the Kemp Fresh Bakery on Chillicothe street. He is a popular young man and will no doubt secure his share of business. People are invited to call around and inspect the plant.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to get young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dark eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you nine per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a well known medicine in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, in their action yet always effective, they bring about the natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by taking up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. E. & S. C. Advertisement.

Injuries May Prove Fatal

Special To Times
PIKETON, March 22.—General Lee Woolridge, manager of the Piketon Produce Company, is in a serious condition at his home on Second street, as the result of injuries received while starting a gasoline engine at his farm on Yankee Hill.

Mr. Woolridge drove to his farm and was starting a twelve horse power gasoline engine, preparatory to grinding some feed for his cattle, when his overcoat became entangled in the fly wheel of the engine and his body was pulled against the wheel and thrown violently to the ground by the force of the engine. When his father, who lives on the farm, came to his assistance, he was in an unconscious condition. He was brought to his home here in a machine shortly after the accident happened. Mr. Woolridge and family moved to Piketon recently and during his residence here he has been managing the Piketon Produce Company, which his father, James Woolridge, purchased from John Delay about a month ago.

ARE YOU TIRED DULL, LANGUID?

DOES your head ache, are you tired when you get up, is it hard to arouse enough ambition to do even the smallest tasks?

VERDICT OF GUILTY IN LIQUOR PLOTS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Mar. 22.—Matthew P. Griffin, formerly lead of the United States Secret Service in the Philadelphia district, and six other defendants were found guilty by a jury in the federal district court today of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with an alleged plot to substitute water for whiskey and alcohol in a large shipment to Greece. They were held in $10,000 bail each, pending argument on motion for a new trial.

Had the plans of the alleged conspirators gone through, it was said, they would have made at least $5,000,000.

In addition to Griffin those found guilty were John McManney, former secret service operative and manager of Griffin's private detective agency; Dr. George L. Kherilla of New York; Martin and Louis Levy, truckmen; Herbert H. Simon, an operative of Griffin's agency; and Samuel Gottesfeld, a warehouse owner. The verdict was reached in less than an hour.

Thirteen men were indicted and all were placed on trial together. Before the case was given to the jury Judge Charles J. McKeen, ordered the acquittal of Andrew T. Hamilton, former Philadelphia police lieutenant, and John Friederich and Thomas Kane, local liquor dealers, for lack of evidence.

Two defendants, Harold L. Smith, export broker and former intercollegiate sprint champion, and Joseph Kleiman, a truck driver, pleaded guilty and were witnesses for the government. The thirteenth man, Louis Acton of New York, has never been apprehended.

Feels Like A New Woman Now After Recovering From Serious Illness.

The demand for Ka-dik since it was first advertised a few months ago has exceeded all expectations. And every month shows large increases in sales. Ka-dik has sprung into popularity on its merits; it contains medication that cannot fail to benefit the human system and has gained adherents by the thousands. It has won the confidence wherever introduced. No other preparation has been so highly endorsed as Ka-dik. The manufacturers of Ka-dik have on file hundreds of statements voluntarily given endorsing Ka-dik which have never been published and never will be published because it would take too much newspaper space to print them.

Ka-dik can be obtained in Portsmouth at Fisher & Streich's Drug Store.—Advertisement.

Cook, damages to truck by collapse of bridge at Stockdale, $106.75; to John Hawkins, guarding ballots, $100; to Leo Ellington, guarding ballots, $50.00; to L. W. Robinson, guarding ballots, $75.00; to H. C. Ware, guarding ballots, $40.00; to Dave Yeager, guarding ballots, $35.00.

Chief of Police C. B. Murphy, who is vigorously enforcing the speed laws, made an arrest Sunday afternoon of two young men from Portsmouth for going up Market street too fast. Cocoon Oil akes
A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Multitied coconut oil shampoo, (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonsful of Multitied in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub the Multitied in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and free of dandruff.

You can get Multitied coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap and a few women will have everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multitied.—Advertisement.

Soviet Must Work Out Its Salvation Hoover Declares

NEW YORK, March 23—It is a "hopeless illusion" that a flow of money or business toward Russia would follow recognition of the soviet government by the United States, Secretary of Commerce Hoover stated in a letter received today by C. Russia's real salvation must come from within Russia, Mr. Hoover declared.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., March 21.—More than a third of all arrests

Many a "Square Meal" isn't square with you

FOOD robbery is often disguised. Vital essentials of diet are left out and the defect hidden by quantity, looks and taste.

Phosphorus is a food element necessary to the body. Nature provides it in her good grains—but extra "reinement" in the milling processes throws it away.

Grape-Nuts supplies phosphorus as a part of the well-rounded, perfected nourishment from wheat and malted barley—together with iron, vitamin, and a bran content so often lacking in modern food.

Grape-Nuts with cream or milk is completely and soundly nourishing; so crisp and delicious that every member of your family will greatly enjoy it for breakfast, lunch or supper.

Ready to serve in a moment. Order from your grocer today.

Man With Broken Neck Dies Sitting In Restaurant

No Negotiations Until French Quit Huhr

MUNICH, March 23.—(By The Associated Press)—Unconditional evacuation of the Ruhr is designated by Chancellor Cuno as the fundamental premise from which any discussion aiming to end the present conflict must proceed.

In a long speech last night the chancellor reiterated the government's position, asserting that it had authorized mediation by any third party but that on the other hand, it had received numerous "feelings from unauthorized quarters."

He said that these proposals constituted "a violation of German honor and common sense."

Referring to the recent Brussels conference between Premiers Poincare and Thomsen, Herr Cuno expressed the opinion that these conversations suggested no program towards a solution of the Ruhr question. The official communique issued after the conference failed, in the chancellor's opinion to dissipate the suspicion that France had not abandoned her aspirations to annex territory.

Most recent readings of the Brussels discussions, Herr Cuno said, have impressed German officials with the thought that they aimed at a complete overthrow of the Versailles treaty.

The German people, he said would stoutly oppose the suggestion of a buffer state fronting on the Rhine.

The chancellor declared that the world by this time had probably awakened to a realization that it is a disarmed and impotent Germany which requires security rather than France, which now commands the world's greatest land forces and the most powerful air fleet.

Special Services At Franklin M. E.

As has been the custom for some time on the quarterly review Sunday the Sunday school and church service next Sunday morning will be combined, beginning at 9 o'clock and closing at 10:30.

The pastor will address all of the adult Bible classes, in the main auditorium of the church, emphasizing the much important and outstanding truths contained in the lessons of the past quarter. Everybody is most cordially invited to this service which in the past has proven to be a most helpful and satisfactory service. This should be especially true next Sunday at the close of the great Evangelistic Crusade in which this church participated and at the close of the study of the most wonderful lessons of the quarter.

The Primary Department will meet as usual in their rooms. Passion week will also be observed the pastor preaching every evening beginning with next Monday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

Forearm Fractured

Chief Engineer On Canal Survey Pays City Visit

Colonel C. W. Kuts, chief engineer in charge of the surveys being made for the proposed Lake Erie-Ohio river canals, with headquarters in Cincinnati, was in Portsmouth over night and left Friday by automobile to join the special surveying corps now at work on the Portsmouth-Columbus-Sandusky route. Colonel Kuts was accompanied by C. I. Grimm, civilian engineer in charge of the surveys. Mr. Grimm has charge of the surveys for all three proposed routes. The gentlemen, of course, would not discuss the advantages or disadvantages of the routes but had a pleasant talk with Alan N. Jordan, the biggest booster for the project in this section.

Will Entertain Real Estate Men

Members of the Real Estate Board and secretaries of the Building and Loan Associations in the city will be guests of Charles V. Wertz at his summer home near Wheelersburg Saturday afternoon and evening.

PALM SERVICES AT ALL SAINTS'

All who love a reverent and dignified service that, while it ministers to the needs of the present, preserves all the beauty of the past, will do well to attend the Palm Sunday services at All Saints' Church. At the morning service the palms will be blessed and carried in procession and palm crosses will be distributed to the congregation. This service will be a choral celebration of the Holy Eucharist, and members of all guilds and societies will make their communion. The church will be decorated with Royal Florida Palms as in former years. The Rector will preach at evensong on "The Cross of Jesus." This sermon will be of help to those who wish to keep Holy Week as it should be observed by all true Christians.

Unanswered Questions About Church

Most people will tell you that there are many questions about the church that have never been answered to their satisfaction. They say that they have never heard some of them discussed in sermons and that there seems to be no way in which their doubts and difficulties can be met. If any such persons who read this notice will attend the Conference on Religion at All Saints' Church tonight they will have the opportunity they seek to have their questions answered. There is a question box at the entrance to the church and questions may be written out and placed therein. This is the last of a series of very interesting conferences. Don't miss it. It will begin at 7:30.

Klan Head Files Suit

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 23.—Worlie M. Cortner, klan leader and organizer of the Ku Klux Klan here, recently dismissed of a charge of riotous conspiracy by Police Judge Golden C. Davis, filed suit today in common pleas court asking $50,000 from Chief of Police K. E. O'Brien as result of the trial and the raid made on klan headquarters here February 14 by Chief O'Brien and a party of raiders.

The suit sets forth five separate causes of action, one each of which Cortner asks $10,000 damages. The first cause alleges that the chief and his raiding party came to klan headquarters on the night of February 14, without authority of law or search warrant and that the raid was a deliberate prostitution of the chief's office as an agent of the law and that the raid was conducted to injure Cortner and throw the klan into disrepute; the second alleges false arrest; the third, alleges unlawful imprisonment and depriving of bail without cause; the fourth alleges assault; the fifth alleges that the defendant in order to disrupt and destroy the klan displayed the organization's private papers for an unlawful purpose.

The petition is signed by six attorneys for Cortner.

Ford Plans To Solve Country's Coal Problems

DETROIT, MICH., March 23.—(By The Associated Press)—Official confirmation today at the office of Henry Ford at Dearborn that the automobile manufacturer had purchased 120,000 acres of undeveloped coal lands in Kentucky, was coupled with the statement that Mr. Ford intended to solve the country's coal problems by "using every piece of coal twice."

By purchase of the property it was officially announced at the Ford offices, Mr. Ford comes into possession of a vast tract of virgin coal lands with a reserve coal supply of 500,000,000 tons. This property, added to other coal lands previously purchased brings the total number of acres of such lands owned by the manufacturer, to 165,000 acres.

From these holdings Mr. Ford hopes that within a year will come sufficient coal to supply all his factories in every part of the country, all factories and mills manufacturing various products for his own concerns as many of the industries in this district as aspire to buy coal from him, and have left fuel sufficient to supply a part of the domestic demand of the country.

Mr. Ford, it is announced, will ask all industrial users of his coal to install furnaces that will remove only the gas and similar substances leaving a fuel unimpeded for domestic purposes. The coal, after this process, would be sold to heat the homes of hundreds of thousands of workers throughout the country. The fuel remaining after the gas has been taken out would be even more valuable for home heating purposes than it was before, it was explained.

Baffled By Strange Case

PORT HURON, Mich., Mar. 23.—Doctors today admitted they are baffled by the strange case of Wanda Loops, 19 year old high school student, who has been in a comatose state for fourteen days. She is the victim, according to the varying opiions of medical men, of sleeping sickness, nervous hysteria or possibly a subtle poison acting upon the brain. The girl lies with arms across her breast, her eyes closed. At times she smacks her lips and then she is given liquid food. March 20 the girl opened her eyes, asked for food, ate, and lapsed into unconsciousness from which she has not since been aroused.

Denies Bank Was Swindled

Cashier Jesse Wamsley of the Otway Savings Bank, denied to The Times Friday that his financial institution had been swindled out of $800 or any other sum of money through the operation of a man, named Allan Davis, now under investigation by Cincinnati detectives, according to Queen City papers.

Mr. Wamsley stated that a man who represented himself as Allan Davis was at Otway about a month ago for a couple of days but that he had no financial transactions with the bank while there.

ONION HAS DISTINCT VALUE

For Many Ailments There is Nothing That Will Get as Good Results in Short Time.

The sweet Italian or the Bermuda onions are the ones to be eaten as nature, their flavor being much more delicate than that of the common varieties. But onions are really sweeteners of the breath after the local effects have passed away, as they correct stomach disorders and carry off the accumulated poisons of the system. They provide a blood purifier that all may freely use, and do perfect work in constipation troubles. As a vermifuge the onion cannot be surpassed, and, eaten raw, will often check a severe cold in the head. One small onion eaten every night before retiring is a well-known doctor's prescription for numerous ailments of the head, and is highly recommended for sleeplessness. It acts on the nerves in a soothing way, without the injurious effects of the drugs so often applied. The heart of an onion, heated and placed in the ear, will often relieve the agony of earache, while the ailment procured from sprinkling a sliced onion with sugar and baking in the oven will work wonders in a "croupy" child.

Mrs. Mary Dressler has resigned as deputy city treasurer, and Miss Dolly Bean, 1115 Second street, has been named by Treasurer John Jones to fill the vacancy. Mrs. Dressler, who resigned in order to accept a position at the Security Bank, will sever her connection with the office Saturday when she will terminate a service of more than nine years in that capacity, under former treasurers, David Edwards and A. J. Fuller and Treasurer John Jones. She will assume her new duties at the bank Monday.

Miss Bean, the new deputy, has been employed for several months as a clerk in the water works department and her appointment is in the nature of a promotion as a reward for efficient service.

MADE MONEY FOR PLAYERS

Fly's Alighting on Particular Number Surely Was Unfortunate for Monte Carlo Casino.

Sailors have always been considered superstitious, and miners come a close second, but neither of them are more superstitious to trifling omens than the deep dyed-in-the-wool gambler.

A Monte Carlo paper tells that a fly alighted on No. 19 on the roulette table recently at a time when the players had suffered a persistent run of bad luck. The superstitious gamblers exchanged covert glances and searched their pockets for money with which to stake.

In a few moments the "riddle dozen," that is to say, the numbers 13 to 24, was liberally covered with stakes. Then an elderly gambler arose and placed a bet on the square on which the fly had alighted, thus backing the numbers from 10 to 17.

Loss confident players staked small amounts on the "transversals." The ivory marble was sent spinning round the roulette wheel, there was a moment of suspense, and then the croupier announced the winning number, 13. But, what is far more extraordinary, the same number came up three times in succession. That fly cost the Casino $25,000.

Genuine Feathered Plane.
The man-o-war bird is a genuine feathered airplane. Without moving its wings seemingly for hours at a time, it calmly floats high in air, ascending in spirals, or drifting lazily along, directing its easy flight by changes of the angle of its "planes" so slight that any effort is not apparent. It is a distinctly tropical bird, seldom being seen farther north than along the coasts of Florida, the Gulf States and Southern California.

The bird is very impressive by reason of its size and the enormous stretch of its long, narrow wings, measuring some seven and a half feet across. When a great flock of thousands soar on motionless wings, they appear like an aerial army of invasion. At close range their great hooded bills give them a rather fierce appearance, though they have but little to boast of in the way of talons, their feet being weak and clumsy, fit only for perching.

Figures in Scottish History.
"Black Douglas" was James Douglas, ninth and last earl of one branch of the Douglas family in Scotland. He was early in life engaged in schemes against James II, and then fled to England, where he had a pension from the crown, and was made Knight of the Garter. In 1454 he engaged himself with the exiled duke of Albany and invaded Scotland, when he was taken prisoner at Lochmaben. On being brought before the court he turned his back upon the king. The compassionate King James III spared his life on condition of his taking the cow. He then entered the monastic seclusion at Lindores, where he died.

Microscope Inventor Unknown.
Although the early history of the microscope is obscure, the first microscope is generally believed to have been made by Zacharias Janssen, a Dutchman, in 1590. The invention is also attributed to Galileo about 1610. Microscopes with double glasses appeared soon after the discovery of the law of the refraction of light, about 1624; but it was not until the invention of the aplanatic lens and its application to the microscope by Lister and others that the instrument became of practical value in the course of science. The binocular microscope was invented by Professor Middel in 1851.

Where Lake Erie Got Its Name.
Lake Erie took its name from a tribe of Indians, of Iroquois stock, but not belonging to the Iroquois confederacy, known as the Eries, who lived in the western part of New York state on the south shore of the lake. Mr. Henry Garnett, an officer of the United States geological survey, and chairman of the United States geographical board, in his "Origin of Certain Place Names in the United States," gives the following: "Erie, one of the Great Lakes, from erie, erike, or eriga, meaning 'wild cat,' the name of an ancient tribe on its borders."

True Politeness.
"Miss Robbins has no partner," said the hostess of a party. "Would you mind dancing with her instead of me?"
"On the contrary," asserted Hockstern, "I should be delighted, indeed!"—Houston Post.

Putting the Largest Picture in the World on the Side of a Mountain

THE biggest photograph ever made will be printed soon on the sheer side of America's famous "Stone Mountain," a hump of granite a mile high rising from a flat plain fourteen miles from Atlanta, Ga.

It will be printed exactly as a photograph in his dark-room prints a picture on a piece of sensitized paper. The side of the mountain will be the piece of paper. It will be sensitized with chemicals. At a distance of seven hundred feet away on the flat plain will be stationed a huge projecting machine. Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, will stand at the machine and throw his picture on the mountain-side, where the chemicals will retain the impression on the solid rock. Night will be Borglum's dark-room.

When the picture on the mountain is finished, it will be two hundred and twenty feet long and one hundred and ten feet high, and in it will be more than one thousand figures, each eighty-five feet high. Yet it will be printed by exactly the same process a photographer uses when he turns out your photograph in his studio.

The purpose of printing this huge photograph on the rock is to provide a working model for the memorial to the Confederacy which Mr. Borglum and his men will carve out of the granite cliff. With hammers and chisels they will cut in relief the figures that are flat in the photograph.

The completed memorial itself will be one of the most stupendous in the world. It will show the Confederate Army—cavalry, guns, infantry—on the march around the mountain-side, led by Gen. Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy.

The huge figures will be visible for miles. They will make a work of sculpture which will rival the famous Sphinx of Egypt and dwarf the pyramids. The printed photograph on the mountain will be an eighth wonder of the world, and the carving that will rise from it will be the ninth.

The memorial was planned years ago and Mr. Borglum was engaged to do the job, but preliminary steps toward creating it had to be stopped on account of the World War. Now work is in full swing again and Mr. Borglum intends to start carving in the next few months, as soon as his photograph on the cliff is finished.

Stone Mountain is a freak of nature. Seen from the skyscrapers of Atlanta, it is like a giant bump in the farmlands to the east of the city. As one gets closer to it, one sees that the mountain slopes to the plain on three sides, but that its northern face is a cliff almost perpendicular.

The mountain contains countless tons of granite. On the sloping sides this has been mined for years. Granite from Stone Mountain was used to build the Capitol of Rhode Island and many other public buildings throughout the country. But the mountain is so big that granite can be mined for years and the surface will scarcely be scratched.

The Venable family, which owns the mountain, donated the sheer side of it to the Confederate Memorial Association. There is no vegetation whatever on this side. It is just a steep scarp, only slightly corroded by the rains and winds of centuries. The precipice can neither be climbed nor descended by man except for a short distance from the top. There have been many suicides here and not a few fatal accidents when adventurous sightseers slipped.

"Stone Mountain Is a Freak of Nature—A Cliff Almost Perpendicular * * Men Armed with Cutting Tools Could Be Lowered Down by Cables."

When Mr. Borglum faced this cliff he was an infinitesimal figure at its foot. But, bulking out from the granite halfway up, he could easily visualize the heroes of the Confederacy—a mighty army—covering the entire mountain-side.

He could easily visualize, too, how those figures could be carved. Once the outline of the figures was traced on the mountain-side from small sketches Mr. Borglum would make in his studio, men could be lowered down the cliff by cables and elevators. They would be armed with cutting tools, dynamite, blasts and anything else that was necessary.

Mr. Borglum's problem, however, was to get the figures outlined. If he had himself lowered over the brink of the precipice and with his own hand traced with paint the figures as he wanted them, he would encounter two great difficulties. First, the task of tracing a thousand figures eighty-five feet high would be interminable. Second, he would lack perspective.

He would be so close to the face of the mountain he wouldn't know what he was doing. He would have to have himself lowered to the ground every now and then—a distance of three hundred feet—so that he could stand off and examine his work as an artist stands off from the easel. Such a method was obviously impossible.

The plan of sketching the figures on a huge canvas and stretching it along the side of the mountain was suggested, but it was not feasible because the canvas would not fit closely enough against the rock and would slip out of place.

Finally, some means of projecting the figures on the cliff was decided to be the only practical plan. Many experiments were made. A shed was built at the foot of the mountain and the figures were outlined on a window in this shed so that, when one looked through the window, he could see the figures on the mountain in the size they would be when carved. The light passing through the window spread out before it reached the mountain and made the figures as projected much larger than they were in actuality.

Mr. Borglum's idea was to look through this window and by means of telephones direct workmen on the mountain so that they would outline the figures accurately. But this, too, proved impossible because of the distance.

At last Mr. Borglum hit on the photographic device.

"When I first thought of this plan," he says, "I wrote to different manufacturers of lamps. As a result, I have just finished assembling at my studio in Stamford, Ct., the most powerful projecting lamp ever built in this country. It will throw its rays a distance of seven hundred feet, which is the distance I must project my drawing from the foot of Stone Mountain to the point on the cliff where I will carve the memorial."

Mr. Borglum recently tested his projecting machine at Stamford. The test was successful. In the first demonstration the machine threw a shaft of light for six hundred feet, illuminating woodlands and rocks with a white screen twenty feet square as a central target. On this screen were shown figures of Lee, Davis and other Confederate leaders.

Now Mr. Borglum is ready to take the machine to Stone Mountain. It will not print the entire picture all at once, but a different piece of it on different nights.

"First," says Mr. Borglum, "I will determine by several nights' work the exact location for Gen. Lee's figure, which will be the first to be thrown. I will make that spot on the mountain sensitive to light by pouring chemicals over it. Men will be lowered down the mountain-side with several barrels of nitrate of silver. The application of the nitrate will, in effect, turn the granite into a sensitized plate. Working only at night, because the night itself will be my dark-room, I will let the rays of the lamp shine against the sensitized mountain-side for several hours.

"After that, more men will be lowered down the mountain-side. They will pour over the exposed spot developing fluid and then 'fixing' fluid. At last the spot will be washed with about ten thousand gallons of water poured over the brink of the precipice. When daylight comes the picture should be imprinted plainly.

"When one spot is printed, my workmen will begin carving on it at once in order to avoid the picture fading by any chance, though it should remain there for months, perhaps years. I will treat the side of the mountain in this way, section by section, until the entire memorial is printed and carved. In three months' time the picture of Gen. Lee should be plain from the foot of the mountain. The carving may take years to complete. It shall be my life work.

"The memorial is to represent the mobilization of the Confederate forces. All branches of the army—infantry, cavalry, artillery—will be shown marching across the face of the mountain. Confederate leaders in the foreground, reviewing these troops, will be Lee, Davis, Stonewall Jackson, Beauregard, Stuart, Gordon and Fighting Joe Wheeler. The figures of Lee and Davis will be the largest of the Confederate chieftains. The head of the horse that Lee will be shown riding will be thirty feet long, and the distance from the top of the rider's hat to the horse's fetlock will be eighty-two feet. The memorial as I plan it will without doubt be the greatest monument ever built. The single figures will dwarf other pieces of sculpture and the entire effect of the marching army will be stupendous."

Special Services At Second Presbyterian Church On Sunday Morning Commencing At 10:15

Members of the Second Presbyterian church and Sunday School are to enjoy a rare treat Sunday morning (Easter Sunday) when the "The Processional" will be rendered by the Junior Choir in the auditorium of the church. The services are to start at 10:15 in the morning, somewhat earlier than the regular church services, and those planning to attend are urged to be in their seats on time so as not to interfere with the program.

Special efforts have been put forth by the children to make this a Sunday of unusual interest. The pastor will preach on "The Triumphant Entry."

A cordial invitation is extended to all to hear this program as the participants have responded splendidly to the instruction of their leaders and the program will be well worth hearing.

On Good Friday evening the choir and Professor Ende will give "The Seven Last Words," by Schuetz and "Mallin," by Gounod. There will also be special organ numbers. The public is invited to this service, which promises to be one of the best.

Thirty voices will be heard in the choir's rendition of two great cantatas.

SCOUT NEWS

The Executive Committee of the Portsmouth Council of Boy Scouts yesterday struck out the game played Wednesday night at Wilhelmsville in which the Troop 17 five defeated the Troop 1 quintet, after the losers had protested that an assistant scoutmaster, Curley Lavinder, had played with Troop 17, which was decided a violation of the rules.

Troop 17, learning of the action taken by the committee, at once protested the game of Tuesday night in which they lost to the Troop 8 squad. Troop 17 made the protest upon the same grounds, namely that Lavinder had been permitted to play. This game was also "thrown out" by the committee.

Troop 8, which lost to Troop 6 15 to 16 when they played with only three players, has been protested by Troop 8 on a decision of the referee. This protest will be considered by the Executive Committee and should it be allowed Troop 8 will be undefeated.

Troops 1 and 17 are undefeated with the protested games thrown out. There is still a chance for three teams to tie for the championship. Troop 8, the colored Scouts, have the hardest row to hoe for they will have to play three games and win all of them to tie for they lost to Troop 3 of Sciotoville last night, which victory gives Troop 3 a chance in the tie. Troop 3 has played all their games. One of the other three, 1, 5 or 17 will be eliminated by Tuesday night. Should the three tie, the championship will be decided Saturday, March 31.

A Real Game

One of the hottest fought Boy Scout basketball games of the season is expected Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, when Troop 1, undefeated five, meets Troop 16, colored Scouts, who have lost one game. The colored five has to win to remain in the fight of the Scout championship. This game will put Troop 1 in fine shape for the big game with the Ashland Minute Men next Thursday night.

Tammany Hall of New York. The Tammany society of New York was incorporated soon after the Revolutionary war. Its meetings took place in Tammany hall, so often distinguished in the political history of the country. Many of the soldiers and sailors of the republic became members of the society, for it was based upon the broadest republican principles. It was in favor of government by the people, of freedom of speech and religion and of the liberty of the press. Originally established for benevolent purposes, it became political as soon as an aristocratic element was suspected to be gaining strength, favorable to a standing army and extensive navy in time of peace, to heavy taxes and to alien and sedition laws, such as were in vogue in the time of the elder Adams, when a large party desired to empower the President so that he could expel suspected foreigners from the soil of the United States, says the Detroit News.

A Far Cry

The distance to which a man's voice will carry depends upon many different circumstances. The condition of the atmosphere is one—damp will slow down the sound waves, while a dry, crisp air will forward them easily. Wind is another factor—so is the height of the speaker in regard to the number of objects, rocks and so on in front of him. The number of competing noises also has to be considered. Under ordinary circumstances few voices will carry intelligibly much over a couple of hundred yards, but this distance has been exceeded with exceptionally favorable conditions. In the stillness of the frozen North, for instance, a voice will carry for over a mile. And a song, as rendered from a mountain top, was once heard at a distance of four miles.

BOXES OF GOLD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Vendetta begins between MICHAEL SAYERS, noted criminal, and SIR NORMAN GREYES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, JANET, saves him from Sir Norman by shooting dead an officer sent to arrest him. Janet became Sayers' wife and accomplice. Michael plots to rob two men, Gorty and Metzger, of seven boxes of gold brought into England to establish private credits. It is arranged for two masqueraders, Mr. and Mrs. Jose de Miguel, to assist Michael. During the absence of Gorty, Madam de Miguel entices Metzger to her hotel room where Michael renders him unconscious. The boxes of gold are substituted for luggage taken from the hotel by the de Miguels, who leave for parts unknown. Greys is called to investigate.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Sir Norman Continues

"I do," was the confident reply. "He was chased out of the States; we have granted an extradition warrant against him on the charge of manslaughter; we have watched every steamship at every port; yet I don't mind confessing to you that we have reason to believe that he is in London at the present moment and in touch with his old associates."

NOTWITHSTANDING Rimington's conviction, I started on no mad quest of my enemy. Indeed, I had no inspiration as to where to begin my search. Janet had left Albernair Court and had not replied to the various notes which I had written her. I had a vague idea that there was danger in prosecuting inquiries for her too closely. I had an idea, too, which was by no means vague, that I was being watched. There was always a jitter of some sort or another in the street when I entered or left my rooms. I felt surreptitious eyes upon me often, when I lunched or dined or visited the theater. Once I walked home late through Lansdowne Passage, and heard the patter of rubber-soled feet behind me. I swung around, and my pursuer, whoever he was, a bulky but agile figure, took refuge in flight.

It was about three weeks after the attack upon Metzger and the disappearance of the gold, when I received a most unexpected visitor. I heard a shrill, foreign voice in the hall overriding my servant's objections, and a moment later a man entered unannounced and evidently in a state of some excitement. "You are Sir Norman Greys?" he said. "I am Gorty. I came to this country of cathartics with Metzger—with him who lies in the hospital. Will you listen to me?"

I motioned to Adams to leave us, and wheeled round an easy-chair for my visitor. "What am I to think?" he demanded fiercely. "I come from a great but poor government. With much trouble we got together the gold with which to buy materials in this country and open credits. It is you who are supposed to be more civilized than any other country. I go to Manchester to speak at a meeting. I come back, and what do I find? My comrade brutally assaulted, my country's gold stolen! Yes, and that in the heart of your London—in the center of your civilization! What am I to think of you, then, as a people, I ask?"

"It was a most unusual crime," I told him, "but you must remember that you were taking grave risks in having a large amount of gold like that unguarded in your room. The police, however, are doing—"

"The police?" he almost shrieked. "Your police? They are imbeciles—imbeciles or rascals, I know not which! And as to having the money unguarded, how could we help it? There are many banks in London who say we owe them money. What would have happened if I had deposited my gold there? They would surely have annexed it. And as it is, do you believe that it is an ordinary thief who has robbed us? No!"

"I am afraid," I said, "that you are taking a very extreme view of things. However, under the circumstances I cannot blame you for feeling ill used. Tell me what brings you here."

"Ten years ago," he went on, suddenly calmer, "I was in the service of the police of my country. There was an anarchist plot. Three criminals escaped to London. You were at Scotland Yard, and I came to see you. You found me those criminals. Tell me what can I do for you?"

"Find me my gold," he demanded. "Find me the man who attacked Metzger."

Sir Norman Talks
HE drew his easy-chair a little closer to mine. He eyed my box of cigarettes hungrily. I placed it by his side, and handed him a match. He smoked furiously. "Listen," he confided; "I have a piece of evidence. I will not take it to the police. I do not trust them. You shall find me my gold."

"What is your piece of evidence?" I asked.

"The little gray man," he answered, "the man whom they spoke of as visiting the South Americans in the next suite. Ah, those South Americans—I never trusted them! I saw Madam make eyes at Metzger. What need had she of Metzger. A woman like that has lovers enough."

"About the little gray man?" I ventured.

"They speak of him in the evidence," Gorty went on eagerly. "He was at the suite that night. I saw him with Madam the South American, two days before. I know where he is to be found now."

"Why the devil haven't you told the police?" I exclaimed. "That is the one man they are looking for."

"But have I not explained?" he expostulated. "I do not trust the police. Six of those solemn constables would march up in uniform to the place I spoke of, and the little gray man would slip away. I tell you. You must find him and see who he is. You must consider how to act. The assassin upon Metzger was bad, but it is the gold I want."

"Very well," I said, "tell me where to find him."

"Go to the reading-room at the British Museum between eleven and one o'clock," Gorty told me. "You will find him there, reading. I myself am a student. Twice I have sat at the next table. He is reading from some rare volumes the 'History of the Rosicrucians.'"

"Between eleven and one," I repeated.

"You will go?"

"Tomorrow morning," I promised. Gorty arose.

"Listen, Greys," he said,—"you, Sir Norman Greys. Will you swear that if you recover my gold, it comes to me?"

"I swear it," I answered.

"Then through that man you will find it," he declared.

GORTY was right. The moment when, from my place of concealment, I saw him come shuffling into the reading-room and take his place nearly opposite to me at the great round table, I knew very well that this was Michael. He carried with him two or three books, a volume of reference and a notebook. He had the appearance of the most devout bibliophile, and indeed, having watched him for some time, I came to the conclusion that he was in earnest about his labors. It was in these little ways that Michael achieved real greatness. Detail was a passion with him. He not only appeared to be deeply interested in the Rosicrucian history, he had actually become so.

A MOMENT LATER A MAN ENTERED UNANNOUNCED AND EVIDENTLY IN A STATE OF SOME EXCITEMENT.

I was without doubt at fault not to have at once passed on my information to Rimington and to have had my old adversary arrested on one of the many previous counts against him. It seemed to me, however, that this would bring to an end our chances of recovering the gold, and I could not ignore the fact that I was indebted to Gorty for the information which had delivered Michael into my hands. I therefore maintained a strict watch, and waited.

For three days and three nights I knew Michael's every movement. He made his own breakfast, lunched at a small restaurant near the Museum, and dined each night at the Moulton, where he sometimes played dominoes for an hour afterward, if able to find an opponent. On the fourth night, however, he departed from his usual practices. The young woman whom I had been employing

Praises Tanlac

M. Cabell Declares It Quickly Ended Stomach Trouble and Restored Lost Weight

"My own case convinces me that Tanlac is the best medicine made, and besides I have heard more praise of this treatment than I have of anything else combined," states Mayo Cabell, well known business man of Harborton, O., residing at 12 N. 5th St.

"Before taking Tanlac my stomach was in such terrible condition that I feared I was to be a confirmed dyspeptic. My appetite was gone and indigestion and bloating were very painful and troublesome to me. My troubles pulled me down in weight and strength until I simply felt wretched and had no energy for my work."

"Well, it's simply remarkable to me the quick and splendid results I obtained from Tanlac. Why in a few week's time, the treatment has put me in as good condition as I ever enjoyed, and various people I meet tell me of similar experiences they have had with Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement to watch him came to me in haste. "Our friend," she announced, "called at the Moulton but took only an aperitif there. He walked across to Romano's and has ordered a table and dinner for two."

"Whereabouts?" I asked quickly.

"Downstairs in the restaurant, on the right-hand side," she replied. I rang up Romano's and engaged one of the tables in the balcony. In a quarter of an hour I was ensconced there behind the curtain, with Miss Rose Weston, the young woman who had brought me the news of Michael's change of plans, as my companion. She had found time to change into evening clothes, and she played her part exceedingly well. We should have passed anywhere as a very ordinary couple, indulging in a somewhat pronounced dinner flirtation. I kept my eye, however, on the table at which Michael was seated below, and in due course I was rewarded. A very elegant, quietly dressed woman came into the restaurant and sank into the chair by his side. I saw at once that it was Janet.

"What you expected?" my companion asked quickly.

"In a sense," I admitted. "Remember, when they leave, it is the woman you follow."

I watched them closely from behind the curtain. There was no more distinguished-looking woman in the room than Janet, or more beautiful. She talked in a low tone to her companion, and her manner was often earnest. Nevertheless she never smiled. She was different in that respect from every one of the duers by whom she was surrounded. There was not a suggestion of festivity about her. She ate moderately, drank sparingly, and talked. All the time she gave one the impression of a great weariness. Toward the end of the meal, what I had been watching for happened. She opened her handbag and passed something across the table. It was about the size and shape of an ordinary shotgun cartridge, but I felt certain, from the way she handled it, that it was heavy. I knew then that we were on the right track.

Checking Up On Revolvers
Lieutenant Theron B. Matthews of Battery B, stated last night there are a number of government revolvers missing from the armory. Anyone having a .45 calibre Smith and Wesson revolver is asked to report to the police giving the serial number of the gun.

Federal prosecutions will not be made if this order is complied with, Lieutenant Matthews says.

SEVERE ATTACKS OF INDIGESTION

Mississippians Says All He Dared Eat Was a Little Bread and Butter—Found Black-Draught Relieved His Trouble

Weir, Miss.—"I had very severe attacks of indigestion," said Mr. M. H. Wade, of this place. "I would suffer for months at a time. All I dared eat was a little bread and butter. . . . consequently I suffered from weakness. I would try to eat, then the terrible suffering in my stomach! I took medicines, but did not get any better. The druggist recommended Black-Draught and I decided to try it, for, as I say, I had tried others for two or more years without any improvement in my health. I soon found the Black-Draught was acting on my liver and easing the terrible pain."

"In two or three weeks, I found I could go back to eating. I only weighed 123. Now I weigh 117, eat anything I want to, and by taking Black-Draught I do not suffer."

In an attack of indigestion, one of the first things to do is to clear the stomach and bowels of all undigested food particles, and Black-Draught has been found very helpful in doing this. A small dose, after each meal, has been found of great benefit to persons who are threatened with, or who are disposed to, attacks of indigestion. Black-Draught assists the stomach to carry on its important work of digestion, and at the same time mildly stimulates the liver to do its work.

FLETCHER THROUGH AS PLAYER

BY BILLY EVANS

LEESBURG, Fla., March 23.—Art Fletcher, new manager of the Phillies, once star shortstop of the New York Giants, has definitely decided that he is through with active service.

that he is through. Only the direct emergency will cause the new pilot to get back into the game. It will be remembered that Fletcher retired from the game for a year. At that time he believed the retirement was permanent. The year's layoff caused Fletcher to lose some of his sprightliness and despite every effort to regain it he cannot come back to old-time form. Fletcher feels sure that Sands will fill the bill, despite the fact that he hit only .247 in the Coast League last year. There seems to be no doubt that his fielding will measure up to big league standards. Fletcher is of the opinion that he will hit as well in the majors as he did in the minors. If so, he will prove a very valuable addition to the Philadelphia club. Should Sands fail to come through, Fletcher is well fortified in Wrightsome. The youngster batted .305, and filled in most acceptably at three of the infield positions. In 25 games at short he led the National League in that position with a fielding average of .966. Fletcher is confident Sands and Wrightsome will keep him from having to break into the game. He will appear in uniform, however, and do the coaching at third.

SOUTH WEBSTER FIVE SMOTHER McDERMOTT TEAM

NOTES ABOUT THOSE REDLEGS

ORLANDO, Florida, March 23.—Eppa Risley did so much pitching this morning that he was excused from afternoon practice and went to the golf course, where he shot a neat 29 for the first nine holes.

It was the hottest day of the season here, and the boys were pretty well wilted after their two sessions. One of the funny little five-minute showers they have here came up in the first inning of the game and delayed proceedings temporarily, but the sun soon returned with redoubled vigor. Every athlete on the field lost from one to five pounds during the day.

Sammy Bohne is not going to shave until next Sunday. He went to a dance at the hotel this evening and one of his fair partners asked him if he belonged to the House of David team.

Outfielder Scheinbaum has been returned to the Waynesboro Club of the Blue Ridge League, whence he came. He will leave for his home in Baltimore tomorrow morning, being the first of the team to get the gate. He is a fast young fellow but without much experience, and Manager Moran has decided that he cannot use him with such men as Bressler and Hook for utility gardeners.

The team will reach home on the evening of April 9, instead of three days later, due to the cancellation of three games at Louisville, where the stand will not be completed in time. President Herrmann is trying to arrange games with the Cleveland Indians at Medland Field for those three days. If he can not get them he will then try to bring the Louisville team over to give the Reds some practice.

Pitcher Alan Clarke, who will give his unconditional release at once. He is a big husky southpaw, with plenty of stuff on the ball, but utterly unable to control his output. He played with Waynesboro last year, but that club refused to deal for him, so he will be let out unconditionally.

Babe Uhlert was in uniform and practiced around the third corner, but did not care to take a chance with his injured finger in the game. He unspooled balls and strikes and gave universal satisfaction. He does not expect to play in a game until the team reaches St. Augustine on Sunday.

While the Reds are playing at Daytona and Tampa next Monday and Tuesday the Colts will remain here, with Rube Bressler in charge, and play two games with Joe Tinker's Orlando team, which is practicing this week on the new Tinker Field.

Yesterday was the first time this year that any of the Red pitchers have gone more than five innings. Both Keck and Abravue went six full rounds and thrived on it. By next week some of the boys will be in shape to go the full route.

McGraw Wants To Set New Record

BY HENRY J. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Mar. 23.—(United Press)—With a nice country home, a comfortable fortune and everything that a man should want when he reaches the age for retirement, John McGraw continues the arduous duties of leading a champion ball club. The "Little Napoleon" of the diamond must be tired of sleeping cars, tied up on hotel food and hardened to the thrills and romances of the game. Twenty-five years of stiff going in an exacting game where it takes youth to hold out, ought to make a veteran of a man in heart and bone.

McGraw must have some reason for sticking at a grind that must be tiresome most of the time. He must have some ambition beyond the mere making of dollars.

He must be inspired by some great desire and from the change in his policies, it may be that "Mac" wants to have the name McGraw perpetuated for all times and have himself recorded as the greatest of all baseball managers.

McGraw used to buy, but he is building now. He used to be one with the attitude that today is the day and let tomorrow take care of itself. Now he is working both ends.

With just a few exceptions, the great Giant ball club which McGraw will start as a favorite in the 1923 pennant race came "ready-to-wear" off the market. It stands a great ball club this year and it is not at the cracking point, although the veterans outnumbering the youngsters in the regular lineup.

McGraw apparently is working on the theory that his infield, the great combination that made the Yanks look sick in the last world's series, hasn't long to go and he is grooming another combination to step up when Groh, Banerett and Kelly have to step down.

No other ball club has in the making an infield to compare with McGraw's. Infielders third baseman; Jackson, Little Rock shortstop; Fred McGuire, Holy Cross second baseman, and Jimmy O'Connell, St. Mary's first baseman, who is also a $75,000 outfielder.

With three or four major league clubs that infield would be regular workers, but McGraw doesn't need them right now and all the time, with the strict personal direction that McGraw carries out, they will be learning as they sit on the bench.

McDERMOTT TEAM ORGANIZES

The McDermott baseball team met Wednesday night and organized for the coming season. As usual McDermott will have a very strong team in the field, and will be in a position to meet all comers. Lynn LaMonda was elected team manager; Lawrence Brannan was chosen treasurer and John Simon was named as business manager. Extensive improvements will be made to the playing field which will be put in excellent shape for the opening game with Rariden on April 22nd. A new grandstand will also be built.

The probable lineup for this season will be: Thompson, catcher; Brannan and Houston, pitchers; Jeannet, Elliott, Koch and Jones, infielders; and McCormick, James, Koch and Simon, outfielders.

Mrs. Mallory Is Regaining Cunning

PARIS, Mar. 23.—As Mrs. Molla E. Mallory's vacation draws to an end she is beginning to find her tennis eye, says the Herald's Cannes correspondent. The American champion who defeated Miss Kathleen MacKane in a hard fought match yesterday meets Mrs. Benish today. The correspondent says that the tournament is likely to end in a final round match between Mrs. Mallory and Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

Miner Has State Basketball Five

Johnny Miner, forward on the Ohio State basketball team, has been elected to captain the Scarlet and Gray quintet next year. Miner is a junior in the arts college and is a Columbus boy, having been a star athlete at East High School a few years ago. Miner has risen from obscurity to a place high in Western Conference esteem all in a single season. Starting as a guard, Miner proved such heavy scoring that he was shifted to forward, where he became one of the most watched basket getters in the Big Ten. Although a marked man, he registered well. Next season he should be a great factor for the Scarlet and Gray.—Ohio State Journal.

Ye Right Bland Blend

Even as in the making of choice sherry, tobacco leaf must be matured and blended before it attains blandness and true virtue.

SPEED YIELDS TO SAFETY

A leading alienist has recently sounded a warning against what he calls the modern mania for speed. Every day one reads of some fresh achievement in rapidity of transportation. Humanity, always more and more in a hurry, urges the makers of airplanes and automobiles to produce the utmost in speed, regardless of safety. The first question asked by intending buyers is: "How fast can it go?"

There is a strikingly significant exception to this demand for excessive speed, which the alienist has overlooked, and it relates to a most important department of transportation: the railroad. It is not only true that trains are not being run any faster because of the competition of automobiles and airplanes, but the tendency seems to be toward a slackening of speed. For some time two great railroads maintained eighteen-hour expresses between New York and Chicago. Several years ago the time was extended to twenty hours. Away back in 1893, the year of the Chicago world's fair, a speed of over 112 miles an hour was attained by the Empire State Express of the New York Central. It has remained the record ever since.

Instead of planning to increase speed, American railroads have been studying safety. Travel by rail is steadily becoming safer. The latest locomotives are built with their center of gravity so low as to reduce the risk of upsetting. Steel cars eliminate the danger of fire and telescoping. Rails are heavier. Automatic signals and other devices afford additional protection. The traveling public sets safety and regularity above speed. The railroad managements and their patrons both show their sense. "The more haste the less speed" is an adage that still has its place in modern civilization.

A LUMP OF SUGAR

THE lump of sugar—it may be two or three—that goes into your coffee each morning represents an industry of stupendous magnitude. One side of it, the tropical agricultural branch, is described by the American Sugar Refining Company in its current report. The statement deals with its own production of raw sugar, the growing of cane and the first step of manufacture. It says that by multiplying its figures by 40 one may get a fair idea of what is required in these elementary stages of the industry to satisfy the sugar needs of the country.

On two Cuban sugar plantations of the company, which aims to harvest cane for 1,100,000 bags of raw sugar of 325 pounds each, 12,000 men work in the fields for 150 days. Nine thousand are cane cutters, while 3,000 do hauling, weighing and general duties. To haul the cane to the railroad 1,500 ox-carts and 12,000 trained oxen are necessary. Thirteen hundred more men operate the factories, railroads, etc. The 1,450,000 tons of cane harvested reduces the 160,000 tons of raw sugar. Railroad service on a large scale and a fleet of ships are employed to get the sugar to refineries in this country. And up to this point but a beginning has been made of producing the sweetening for America's breakfast coffee.

Sugar being indispensable and being used in enormous quantities by people all over the world, its every price movement causes a reaction on the pocket nerve of populations. The rise of a cent or two in price brings serious complaints if not actual discomfort. Possibly the people are not always fairly treated by the sugar trade. But it is well to reflect on the vast importance of this industry to mankind, not only the benefit it affords consumers but the living that scores of thousands make out of it.

Hurth Hotel Company Secure Option On Adjoining Property

The Hurth Hotel company has secured an option on the three-story building on Chillicothe street occupied by the Salvage store from the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ruark of Columbus and if it is closed the property will be used as part of the site for the $200,000 hotel this company will build at Third and Chillicothe streets. It is understood the figures in the option are $30,000.

With the acquirement of this property the hotel would have a frontage of about 80 feet on Chillicothe street.

Gooden and McConnell, Chillicothe street barbers, have set April 2 as the day they will move into the basement of the Security bank building on Gallia street.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY G. O. MCINTIRE

NEW YORK, Mar. 23.—Thoughts while strolling around New York. Ancient Lotharios trickling out to tea. Slim white wolfhound. Steamship pursers' window shopping. George Jones. A bearded chauffeur. Doggy dresser. A florist's window. Cool green ferns. Purple asters. Frail orchids. I feel like doing an ode to something or other. Groups of gamblers in the throes of hangovers. Waiting for the lights to come on.

I'd like to see some fresh looking corn fed girls. I'm weary of enameled faces. And dull, unimaginative minids. A famous Fifth Avenue rec-tor and his fiancée. Norman Bel-Goddes. Made a fortune decorating jazz mosques along Broadway.

Bullies ailing pups. Stopped from pushing tea wagons. Always flowers in Helen Gould's windows. An Indian prince with a celebrated jaguene. And she's trying not to appear self-conscious. Sweet Patootie! That fellow is wearing a pink vest. Two limousines jock wheels with a crash. And bored lady occupants puff their cigarettes while drivers snarl. That poor vendor of tiny American flags never seems to make a sale. A dying sun breaks through the lazy puffs of clouds.

Washington Square Arch silhouetted in the distance. Buses unloaded to their timid sightseers. Anxious to watch the intellectual fires burn in Greenwich village. And there'll see only locus-pocus. Still, life is most-ly that.

The summer bench warmers are returning to Madison Square. There's Charles Dana Gibson. He clings to the old time standing collar—open at the Adam's apple. A baby in its sidewalk crib nibbling rosy toes. Wish I had six or seven, a prairie cottage and a lack of hunger for success. There goes a shoe string! O, well!

Auto suggestion may kill as well as cure. A true story comes out of the hectic whirl of theatrical life. A finished actor had for seven weeks been portraying a fatal heart seizure in a play dealing with an illicit love. Nightly and twice at matinees he went through his death agonies. His was a rugged constitution. In fact he has never been ill in his life. The other night after his performance he was sitting at a table in a theatrical club. He suddenly went through the facial contortions that he essayed in his play, then stiffened off cold in death. Only one New York paper printed the story. Others considered it carried too much free puffery. I know it to be true.

Speaking of auto suggestion, the specialty shop at Fifth avenue are doing a rushing business with the Comidette, a tiny statuette of the eminent Dr. Cooe. It threatens to surpass in sales the statuette of the zodiac of luck Billikin of a few years ago.

There is something of a great tragedy to me in the advertisement of a New York millionaire for the return of a one-blade Barlow knife. He lost it near his office building. Says the ad: "It has been in possession of the owner since he was 8 years old. He could easily replace it with a diamond knife but only the boy who has lived in a small town can appreciate the value of his first pocket knife."

Doc Koko's KOLUM

Song
When I am dead, my dearest,
Sing no sad songs for me;
Plant thou no roses at my head,
Nor shady cypress tree;
By the green grass above me
With showers and dewdrops wet;
And if thou wilt, remember,
And if thou wilt, forget.

I shall not see the shadows,
I shall not feel the rain;
I shall not hear the nightingale
Sing on, as if in pain;
And dreaming through the twilight
That doth not rise nor set,
Happy I may remember
And happy may forget.
—Christina Georgiana Rossetti.

No Chance To Show Power
"Why are you so interested in that quarrelling couple?"
"I happen to know them. The husband is a master of languages."
"He seems to have abdicated for the time being."
—Birmingham Age-Herald

Auspicious Beginning
"Where did you first become acquainted with your present husband?"
"I was out walking with my first husband when my present husband ran over him with his machine. That was the beginning of our friendship."
—Houston Post.

Never Satisfied
"He used to say if he ever made $10,000 a year he'd be perfectly contented."
"And now that he is making that much, is he contented?"
"Not at all. He's constantly grumbling about the income tax he has to pay."
—Detroit Free Press.

The Brute!
When Ethel went round to visit her chum one evening she found her utterly miserable.
"Whatever is the matter, Lily?" she asked.
Lily's face grew longer than ever as she answered between sobs:
"I've broken off my engagement with Jack."
"Never mind, Lily," said Ethel comfortingly, "he is certain to come round and patch it up with you before long."
"I don't think so," replied Lily. "You see, I wrote and told him never to see me or write to me again. And," she added vehemently, "he hasn't even been nice enough to answer my letter."

Just The Man To Relieve
Among the members of a fashionable country club are a doctor and a minister, who delight in the exchange of repartee.
As they met one day, the minister observed that he was "going to read to old Cunningham," adding (as he was aware that the old man was a patient of his friend, the doctor): "Is he any worse?"
With the gravest of expressions the physician replied:
"He needs your help more than mine."
Off his guard, the minister asked, anxiously: "Poor fellow; is it as bad as that?"
"Yes, he is suffering from insomnia."—Living Church.

The Desire For Change
Mother: I don't know what the matter is with that child. He won't stay in the same place any length of time.
Father: He probably got it from his nurse.
Pat had been told by the sergeant that unless he made an arrest of some kind he couldn't keep his job on the force, so early one morning Pat came into the station with a little man in tow.
"Well," said the sergeant, "I see you got somebody. What's the charge?"
"He's charged with bigotry, yer honor."
"There is no such thing as bigotry."
They proceeded to look over a list of charges, but could not find "bigotry."
"It's not here," said the sergeant. "What's he been doing?"
"Doing?" said Pat, "why, the runt has three wives."
"Why," said the sergeant, "that's not bigotry, that's trigonometry."—Judge.

Sensible Chap
There was a mad who never wrote an acceptance to an invitation with out adding W. P. His friends asked him what the letters meant—if they stood for "Weather Permitting."
"No," was his reply, "they stand for 'Wife Permitting.'"

Not Sprayed Either
"There's one good thing about a genealogical tree."
"What's that?"
"It doesn't have to be trimmed every spring."

Meeting Postponed
